McCarthy Is Criticized By Two GOP Governors

Warren and Duff Regret His Random 'Blanket' Charges; Dewey Won't Say

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 18.—Two of the Nation's leading Governors, both influential in the Republican Party, today criticized Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) for his methods in hunting Communists in the Government.

Gov. Earl Warren of California and Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania said McCarthy was wrong in making "blanket" and "random" charges that the State Department was harboring Communists, without being able to back up the charges with concrete evidence.

Warren, who is being talked about as a possible Republican nominee for President in 1952, said a bipartisan agency should be set up to make a "thorough and fair" investigation of the whole situation. Only in that way, he said, would the American people be satisfied and their confidence in government restored.

Duff Cracks at Truman

Duff, who is confident he will be elected to the United States Senate next November, took a crack at President Truman before he rebuked McCarthy.

He said he gathered from what he had read that Mr. Truman is trying to "wipe out" the Republican Party and make the United States a one-party country. He based this on his understanding that Mr. Truman is going into the various states this fall to help out Democratic candidates for Congress.

Warren and Duff are here at the Greenbrier for the forty-second annual Governors' Conference. They are among 46 state chief executives who are gathered in this mountain resort to study domestic and world problems for the next four days.

Dewey's Feelings "Mixed"

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who announced yesterday that he would not run for another term this fall, was asked what his feelings were in connection with McCarthy's charges.

"Mixed," he said.

Dewey, who is titular leader of the GOP, would not amplify the laconic remark.

Asked about a report that he was backing Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican nomina-

Rescue Crews Free Man After 2 Hours Buried in Well

Elkhart, Ind., June 18 (AP).—Rescue crews freed a 33-year-old farmer from a caved-in well excavation tonight where he was trapped for nearly two hours.

The farmer, Henry Milton Randall, was buried while digging a well with a neighbor in the back yard of his home.

The excavation was 18 feet deep and the men were sinking sections of pipe into the hole.

The neighbor, Vernon Sysinger, climbed out to get a wrench when the well collapsed on Randall. He was completely buried 12 feet down except for his left hand.

Sysinger handed Randall a garden hose and the trapped man breathed through this until rescued.

Vogeler May Be Released By Hungarians in Day or Two

Vienna (Monday), June 19 (AP).—Responsible American sources said early today that Robert A. Vogeler, American businessman imprisoned in Hungary, is expected to be back in Vienna within the next two days.

The informants, who are in close touch with the American Legation in Budapest, said the Hungarian government may turn him over to United States officials Tuesday or Wednesday.

However, these informants added that negotiations with the Hungarian government are still proceeding and that nothing definite has been promised yet by the Hungarians. As one official put it, "The deal may still fall through."

It is felt that Edgar Sanders, British associate of Vogeler who was sentenced at the same time, will not be released at present.

Vogeler, 39, an executive and roving European representative for the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., and Sanders were convicted by a Hungarian people's court last February 21 on charges of espionage and sabotage. Vogeler

'Standard Defense Plans'

West German Bridges, Roads Reported Set for Dynamiting

Frankfurt, Germany, June 18 (AP).—Key roads and bridges in Western Germany are being prepared for quick destruction in event of a Soviet attack, a German picture magazine and a French source indicated today. Similar preparations apparently are being made in other European countries, probably from a master plan drawn up by Western defense chiefs. Official occupation sources declined to confirm or deny such actions are being taken.

The measures appear to be standard routine procedure. There is no hint that the West fears any imminent Soviet attack.

The defense preparations came to light when a German picture magazine published pictures of a winding highway around famed Lorelei Mountain on the Rhine River, in the French zone. The pictures showed a long series of holes being drilled in the road and then covered with concrete caps.

Obviously, all that would be necessary in an emergency would be to drop explosive charges in the holes and set them off. The explosives would tumble the highway into the Rhine at one of its narrowest points, possibly blocking the passage of river boats and almost certainly making the road impassable for a considerable time.

Workmen declined to comment.

A French source in the Coblenz area said:

"It is not only this route on which such measures are taken and not only the French who are making such preparations. It is the Allied high command which ordered this."

Most European countries build bridges with chambers where

'Very Fine Job'

Peurifoy Indorsed by Sen. Bridges

Republican Senator Styles Bridges yesterday criticized the methods of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) in pressing charges, but said McCarthy's objective is praiseworthy.

Bridges, of New Hampshire, sharply differed with McCarthy on another point by calling John E. Peurifoy, Deputy Undersecretary of State, "a very able man" who has done "a very fine job."

McCarthy bitterly assailed Peurifoy in a speech last week, accusing him of offering favors to an investigation witness. This drew denials from both.

Bridges' discussion of McCarthy's feud with the department came as McCarthy demanded that Senate investigators question career diplomat John S. Service about the 1945 Amerasia secret document case at a public hearing instead of behind closed doors.

That case, which involved alleged theft of a big batch of confidential Government papers, is being investigated by a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee as part of its general inquiry into McCarthy's charges. The committee has summoned Service, who was arrested in the case and then cleared, to a closed meeting Thursday.

Bridges told a television audience (NBC) he has tried to steer

Grandmother, 59, Bears 4th Child; Husband 61

Wichita, Kans., June 18 (U.P.).—Mrs. George T. Harmon, already a grandmother and in her sixtieth year, presented her 61-year-old second husband with a boy recently, it was learned today.

Was she surprised?

"Good heavens," she said, "I should say so. I didn't know it until two months ago."

George was surprised, too.

It is her fourth child and her husband's second.

2 Flying Boats Set Pacific Mark With 248 Aboard

San Diego, Calif., June 18 (U.P.).—Two great Navy flying boats landed here today with 248 passengers and crewmen to set a passenger-carrying flight record from Honolulu.

The 82-ton flying boat Caroline Mars arrived first after a 14-hour and 17-minute flight from Hawaii and unloaded 144 persons—126 Hawaiian Marine reservists seeing the United States for the first time and 18 crewmen.

The Hawaii Mars put down about three hours later with 104 Hawaiian Marine reservists and crewmen after an overnight flight from Honolulu with a brief stopover at the Alameda, Calif., naval station.

The sister ships each are about as high as a four-story building and their wings would all but cover a football field.

Two GOP Senators Attack Lie As Red 'Partisan Incumbent'

By the United Press

Two Republican Senators attacked United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie yesterday as a "Soviet partisan incumbent" and said the United States should seek his ouster unless he changes his ways.

The Senators, Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) and William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) bitterly assailed Lie's recent proposal—made after he conferred with Russian officials in Moscow—that the Chinese Communists be seated in the United Nations.

"That," they said in a joint statement, "would be abject surrender" to the Soviet Union in the cold war.

Meantime, Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) proposed that Russian Premier Josef Stalin be invited here to discuss issues between Russia and the United States. Calling for a halt to "long-distance sparring," he said nothing should be left undone in an effort to end the cold war.

President Truman has said a number of times that he is ready to see Stalin any time the Soviet leader wants to come here. But the President has made it plain that he does not intend to issue a special invitation.

Knowland and Bridges, arch foes of the Administration's Far Eastern policy, accused Lie of "cooperating in a scheme" to give Russia another vote in the U. N. Security Council.

"He adopts the same insidious tactics as the Communists themselves and becomes at least their tool, if not their actual ally," they said.

"His efforts, if successful, would

Ruhr Voters Reject Both Left, Right

Reds Drop From 14 To 5 Pct. of Vote; Nationalists Nil; Socialization Wins

Duesseldorf, Germany, (Monday) June 19 (AP).—State election returns today showed that Ruhr voters had inflicted a major defeat on the Communist Party but apparently favored the socialization of monopolistic industry.

The balloting took place yesterday in Western Germany's most important state—North Rhine-Westphalia in the British occupation zone. The voters picked members of a 215-seat state parliament and also voted on a proposed state constitution.

With 4,533,821 votes counted, approximately two thirds of the total, Communist strength had tumbled to a postwar low in the State. The Communists had only 5 percent of the valid ballots, compared with 14 percent in the last election three years ago.

The Ruhr miners and steel workers in the powerhouse of German industry appeared to favor the proposed State constitution with its socialization clause which states:

"Large factories of the basic industries and undertakings which, because of their monopolistic position have special significance, shall be transferred to common ownership."

Industries Not Identified

The specific industries which would be socialized are not named in the draft.

The Communists were not the only ones taking a beating at the polls. Germany's small but noisy nationalistic parties of the extreme right were winning only a few votes, and in every case their parliamentary candidates were being defeated. Fears in Western Allied quarters that the nationalists might gain successes thus apparently had been dispelled.

Middle-of-the-road parties, on the other hand, maintained their solid position among the Ruhr's voters.

The conservative Christian Democrats had 36.1 percent of the votes counted. Many Christian Democrats, although favoring free enterprise, voted for the draft constitution on religious grounds since it provides for a system of denominational schools.

The Social Democratic Party (Socialists) had 32.4 percent of the vote. By a quirk of local politics, many Socialists opposed the constitution because of the school issue.

Results From 109 Counties

Results from 109 of 150 counties gave these totals: Christian Democrats, 1,636,072, 36.1 percent; Social Democrats, 1,469,689, 32.4 percent; Free Democrats (rightwing), 552,923, 12.2 percent; Communists, 230,110, 5 percent; Zentrum Party (conservative), 369,823, 8.1 percent; Deutsche Partei (rightwing), 80,273, 1.8 percent; Deutsche Reichspartei (nationalist), 95,662, 2.2 percent; Radical Socialist Freedom Party (leftwing), 91, 725, 2 percent; Sozialistische Reichspartei (nationalist), 7295, 0.2 percent; independents, 249.

The results on the constitutional referendum, with 136 of the 150 counties tabulated: For the constitution, 3,242,814; against, 2,052,814.

The eligible 9,000,000 voters represented about one-fourth of all those registered in West Germany.

In Talks With Defense Chiefs

MacArthur Reported Asking U. S. Arms Aid for Formosa

Tokyo (Monday) June 19 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur told Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley today that the United States still can save Formosa and other Far Eastern danger spots from communism, informed sources said.

MacArthur was reported to have made the statement in long secret sessions this morning with Johnson and Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. It was their second straight day of conferences on Far Eastern problems.

MacArthur, the sources said, emphasized the importance of Japan to both Soviet and American interests and said it would be a top objective of any Communist advance against the United States.

For that reason, he told the defense chiefs the United States must maintain its present influence in Japan and assure it military protection to cement its stand alongside the Western democracies.

A qualified source said MacArthur felt that moderate arms aid given now to the Nationalists can still save the island from falling and that this was consistent with U. S. policy in Korea, Indo-China and other countries getting arms aid although their governments do not have entire American approval.

As the conferences went into their second day, the Communist Party organ Akahata headlined a demand that the "fortification" of Japan be suspended and anti-Communist measures stopped.

The newspaper sidestepped official wrath by saying, in a Tass dispatch from New York, that these demands were made by the U. S. Communist Party.

In their morning conferences, the U. S. officials were also believed to have touched on the advisability of a separate peace treaty between the Western powers and Japan at this time.

John Foster Dulles, special adviser to Secretary of State Dean Acheson, will arrive today from Seoul, Korea, for talks on political aspects of the Far East—which naturally also include the treaty question.

On Wednesday Johnson and Bradley are to visit the great Yokosuka navy base, south of Tokyo, which many Navy men want to keep permanently.

Thursday the defense chiefs will fly to Okinawa for inspection of bases, which are being installed on a permanent basis.

Nine Seized In Card Game; Three Escape

Police Undercover Operative Takes Part; Bribe Attempt Charged

Nine men were arrested at 610 5th st. nw. early yesterday when police raided a poker game in which an undercover operative for the department was playing. Three men escaped.

Four were seized and later charged with setting up a gaming table and five were charged with disorderly conduct. One of the four booked on the gaming charge also was charged with attempted bribery of a police officer.

He was identified as William Fred Shaver, 47, of the 5th st. address.

Lieut. Alex S. Douglas said his three-man raiding party, equipped with a United States Commissioner's search warrant, rang the front door bell at the house about 1 a. m.

Shaver, the lieutenant said, opened the door and closed it—locked—behind him. He then took three $5 bills out of his pocket, according to Douglas, with the question:

"Is everything all right?"

Douglas' reply was to arrest Shaver.

Without a key to open the door, police broke it down. In the upstairs room, the undercover operative and eight other men were sitting around a large table containing, officers reported, cards, chips and money.

Charged with setting up a gaming table were Edward L. Valentine, 26, of 1468 Clifton st. nw.; Marion S. Butler, 45, of 415 Massachusetts ave. nw., and Nick Passero, 53, of 618½ 4th st. ne.

Shaver was released under $2500 bond on the two charges he faces. The other three charged with gaming were released under $1500 bond. All face an appearance today before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Detectives said the game had been operating for two months, with bets ranging from $2 to $8. The undercover operative, who announced his identity during the door-breaking, had attended several sessions, authorities said.

Four Die in Highway Traffic; D. C. Driver Held in Hit-Run

Traffic accidents claimed the lives of four persons yesterday in the Washington area and in Virginia.

In the District, 89-year-old Mrs. Mary O'Neill of 3100 Connecticut ave. nw., was injured fatally at 11:45 a. m. yesterday when she was struck by a taxi at Cathedral ave. and 17th st. nw., police said.

She died of head and other injuries at 2:57 p. m. at Emergency Hospital.

Police said she was on her way to St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church, 2661 Woodley rd. nw., and walked from behind parked cars into the path of the taxi.

The driver was identified by police as Louis C. Long, 66, of 509 E st. nw. Long was released in the custody of his attorney pending a coroner's inquest at noon today.

Man Killed When Jack Slips And Car Crushes Him

A Herndon, Va., Safeway store clerk was crushed to death late yesterday when a car he was repairing slipped off a jack and fell on him.

Arlington Hospital doctors pronounced the victim dead at 5:50 p. m. He was identified as Isaac M. Goode, 22, a clerk at the Westover, Va., Safeway store.

According to Private Charles E. Norfolk of the Fairfax County police, Goode was relining the brakes of the auto at the home of his father, Kirby M. Goode, 125 Manikin Walk, Falls Church, when the fatal slip occurred. The Goodes were away visiting at the time, and the accident was discovered by neighborhood youngsters.

Excise Strategy

Tax Boost On Big Firms Under Study

By The Associated Press

The House Ways and Means Committee may pin a "veto proof" tag on the $1,100,000,000 excise tax-slashing bill today by voting to boost by about 500 million dollars the annual tax take from big corporations.

But there is a threat the committee may become snarled in an argument over cigarettes.

Here's the picture on the eve of important voting:

1. The committee has approved cuts totaling over a billion dollars in the excise imposts on furs, jewelry, cosmetics, pocketbooks, movie tickets, telephone bills, travel tickets and scores of other items.

2. But President Truman has warned he will veto any excise-cutting bill that does not pick up the lost revenue by higher taxes in other directions. The committee thus far has been able to cover only about half the excise cut by loophole plugging and various other tax law changes.

3. Confronted with a possible stalemate, the committee Democrats and House Speaker Sam Rayburn held a secret meeting late last week. Competent sources said virtual agreement was reached to put a half billion in new income taxes on big corporations to cover the rest of the excise loss. That would be done by boosting levies

Farm Income Declines Billion in 6 Months

Farm income for the first six months of this year was a billion dollars less than for the same period last year, the Department of Agriculture reported yesterday.

It estimated the farmers collected $10,600,000,000 during the January-June period, a cutback of 9 percent.

The drop was attributed to lower prices and a reduction in the volume of products farmers had to sell. Prices averaged 6 percent lower than last year.

33,000 Extensions Planned

Defense Department Launches Huge, Single Phone System

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The first step in a trail-blazing plan to consolidate the telephone system of the Department of Defense goes into effect this morning.

All the 33,000 phones in the department will become, by fall, extensions of a single telephone number—the largest private system in the world. The single, huge PBX will handle upwards of 250,000 calls daily and 25,000 an hour during peak periods.

Officials said the complex new defense communications operation is aimed at strengthening security and has the following features: (1) speeding up phone service in the department; (2) permitting greater expansion of service required durfng a national emergency; (3) will assure, by duplicate facilities, continued communications in case one facility is knocked out by bombing or sabotage; (4) greater unification of the armed forces and lower cost of operations.

Under the initial step effective today, the Pentagon telephone number will be changed from Republic 6700 to Liberty 5-6700. It'll be the only Liberty number in the Washington area. You can still get the Defense Department by dialing the old number if you forget for a few days, officials said.

The present Navy phone number Republic 7400—will continue for extensions at Main Navy, the Arlington Annex Yards and Docks and so forth, until October, when all Department of Defense phones

Union Agrees To 5½-Day Compromise Proposal

Normal Deliveries Back By Tuesday; Seven-Day Operation Accepted By Dairies

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

The eight-day Washington area milk strike was settled yesterday.

Many stores and some householders should receive milk deliveries today, and home deliveries should be completed Tuesday, dairy spokesmen said. However, plans of the various dairies vary.

The 1650 union employes of the nine major dairies in this area won an average work week of 5½ days—compared with the previous 6-day week—without loss of pay, effective September 1.

The dairies, which had insisted on a 6-day operation with the plants closed on Sundays, agreed to continue the seven-day operation and every-other-day home deliveries.

More Employes Needed

The shorter work week will mean the hiring of 100 to 150 new employes by the milk distributors, it was estimated yesterday.

Dairy spokesmen refused to comment on whether milk prices might be raised as an aftermath of the new contract.

During negotiations, they had said the cost of milk would go up unless plant operations could be reduced to six days a week.

The union, Local 246, AFL Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes, accepted the dairy proposal by a vote of 727 to 149 at a membership meeting yesterday afternoon.

Early Morning Agreement

Tentative agreement, subject to union ratification, had been reached at 5 a. m. yesterday by management and union negotiators. The final session had continued from 1 p. m. Saturday, with only a two-hour break for dinner. Signing of a written contract will come shortly.

The emergency distribution plan set up for the strike duration ended last night.

Federal Conciliation Commis-

See STRIKE, Page 5, Column 1.

One Lone Issue Caused District's 8-Day Milk Crisis

The single issue which left Washington milk-dry for eight days was this:

The union wanted a shorter work week without a loss of take-home pay. It asked a 40-hour, five-day week in place of the existing 48-hour, six-day week. The proposal, however, included a demand that dairies continue seven-day operation.

The dairies accepted the five-day, 40-hour week principle, but insisted on eliminating Sunday deliveries.

The union said the plan would cut down employes' pay since customers would do their buying at stores on Sundays and employes' commissions would suffer. The union then offered instead a plan for a 5½-day week, but tied to a seven-day plant operation.

The employers rejected the seven-day operation plan, but finally early yesterday they agreed on the basis of the alternating work-week plan. The employes will work five-day and six-day weeks starting September 1.

Beginning August 1, the men will accumulate a day off every other week which will be paid off after September 1. Although the contract is dated back to June 6, the day-off arrangement does not commence until August 1, under terms of the final agreement.

Union officials said the plan will yield 21 additional days off in the first year of the contract and 25 additional days off in the second year.

Pay of the union milk drivers, which was not in dispute, is $63.50 a week guaranteed base pay, plus commissions. Average total pay, the union estimates, is $75 to $80 per week, but the company figures are higher, ranging up to $100 or more. The union estimates pay of plant workers averages $58, and cites a guaranteed base pay of $68.25 for wholesale milk drivers.

Crime Probers Seek Numbers Racket Tieups

Senate crime investigators are checking into a possible interstate link between local "numbers" rackets that feed on the pennies and nickels of countless small fry bettors, it was revealed yesterday.

Chairman Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) disclosed the new line of inquiry in a letter to Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.). He said the committee agents in Florida have been ordered to "explore any interstate aspect to the 'Cuba' and bolita operations."

The two "operations" are the winter vacation land's version of the "policy" or "numbers" rackets that thrive in most of the Nation's big cities. Holland has estimated they drain "thousands of dollars" daily from the purses of Florida workers.

The letter was the first hint the crime investigators are collecting information on the "numbers" racket. Until now, its study of big-time gambling in Florida and elsewhere has centered on racing bookies and the operations of plush gambling casinos.

Hearing This Week

The power of the committee, which is scheduled to hold its first public hearing here this week, was greatly strengthened Saturday when President Truman authorized it to check the secret income tax, immigration and FBI files on underworld characters.

Kefauver hopes the information will enable his investigators to find out where gambling and racket kingpins get their money and how they spend it.

The heads of the various Federal law-enforcement agencies will testify at the committee's first open hearing Wednesday.

Under the "numbers" or "policy" rackets, bets are made that a particular series of numbers will "come up" in the Federal Treasury figures, the New York stocks and bonds lists or race track parimutuels. Odds run several hundred to one.

Bets normally are in terms of pennies and nickels and usually are made by low-wage earners who can least afford to lose. In some cities, there have been angry complaints the "racket" extends even into high schools.

Widened Scope Asked

Holland asked Kefauver a week ago to widen the scope of the inquiry to include the "Cuba and bolita operations," which, he said, center largely in central Florida.

In his reply, he told Holland the committee's investigators are winding up their work in Miami, where they have been running down leads developed at an earlier inquiry, and that further hearings will be held when the job is complete.

Neither Holland nor Kefauver dropped any hint as to which other States may be linked to the Florida setup. But committee members have said evidence linked Miami gambling operations with big-time operators all over the nation, including Frank Erickson, who goes on trial in New York today on bookmaking and conspiracy charges, and Mickey Cohen, Los Angeles "haberdasher."

Winner in The Post's Contest for Ideal Dad Feted With His Family on Busy Father's Day

The Washington Post

TOAST TO FATHER—Raising a special toast with Lieut. Comdr. Harold R. Willis, The Washington Post's "Ideal Father of 1950," yesterday during Father's Day dinner at the Statler are "Bobby" Willis, "almost 9," whose letter won the title for his father, and Mrs. Willis. Daughter Carol Lee Willis, 4½, looks on from a fine vantage point

The Willis crew, with Lieut. Comdr. Harold R. Willis in full charge, spent an "ideal" Father's Day yesterday, as guests of The Washington Post.

All hands were on deck except baby Richard, 14 months, and the 40-year-old dad, selected as the Washington area's most representative father in The Washington Post contest, relaxed and enjoyed himself.

The officer, attached to the Naval Receiving Base, Anacostia, first was interviewed over WTOP. Hazel Markel, on her 1:15 p. m. program, questioned him as to how it felt to hold the title of ideal father.

"There are millions of dads who deserve the honor as much as I do," said Lieutenant Commander Willis. "First of all you need an ideal mother, and Mary fills that bill."

Harold junior's winning letter, entered in the contest praising his pop as "the best in the world," was read over the air. His entry had come in the mail with nine others from Cub Scout Den 9, of which "Den Dad" Willis takes charge with an able assistant, "Den Mom" Willis.

The family had dinner in the Terrace Room of the Hotel Statler. When Harold, sr., and Harold, jr., went for steak, Mrs. Willis and Carol Lee, 4, went for roast Long Island duckling.

At Loew's Capitol Theater, the spotlight found the family in the presidential box.

With the Father's Day celebration over, the Willises headed for home, 4216 4th st. se.

Plakhine has been head of the Soviet Legation here for five years, the normal term.

Were Duped, Girl-Seeking Sailors Say

Police yesterday charged a 30-year-old man with false pretenses for making off with $40 paid him for the services of four prostitutes he didn't produce.

The alleged pretender was identified as Roscoe Ancrum. Police listed his address as 928 4th st. nw.

Ancrum was trapped Saturday night with the help of one of four sailors who told police he approached them at 3rd and G sts. nw., on May 5 and offered to procure four women.

Ancrum collected $10 from each sailor, police said, then led them to an apartment house in the unit block of I st. ne.

While they waited, the sailors reported, Ancrum entered, then came out and said they couldn't go in because of their uniforms.

Offering to adjourn the party elsewhere, Ancrum went back inside and disappeared, the sailors charged.

Saturday night, one of the four returned to the vicinity with another sailor while Private Benjamin F. Bean of the First Precinct Station lingered in the background.

At 4th and G sts. nw., police reported, Ancrum popped up again with the same offer. The sailors delayed the payoff but followed to the same apartment house.

Ancrum entered, but didn't come out. Bean located him shortly after and made the arrest. Ancrum was held pending a hearing in Municipal Court today.

Man Kills Wife, Self On 25th Anniversary

Union, Iowa, June 18 (U.P.).—A veterinarian killed his wife on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary yesterday, then committed suicide, authorities said.

The bodies of Dr. G. T. Simmons, 63, and his 52-year-old wife were found at their home shortly after neighbors heard the sounds of shots. Sheriff Paul Hodgson said it was "murder and suicide."

Mrs. Simmons sued for divorce recently, but dropped the suit.

Yield Bombs, Einstein Asks All Nations

Princeton, N. J., June 18 (U.P.). Dr. Albert Einstein today urged that all stockpiled atom bombs be handed over to a super world organization.

"The arms race is the worst method to prevent open conflict," the dean of world scientists warned. "On the contrary, real peace cannot be reached without systematic disarmament on a supernational scale. I repeat, armament is no protection against war, but leads inevitably to war."

His statements were made in an interview recorded in his study here and included in a documentary broadcast on atomic energy.

Asked what he thought should be done with the present supply of stockpiled atom bombs, Einstein said:

"Give it into the hand of a supernational organization. During the interval period of solid peace one must have some protecting power. One-sided disarmament is not possible; this is out of the question, arms must be entrusted only to an international authority. There is no other possibility."

Einstein declared that the only way to prevent disaster was by patient negotiation and creation of a legal basis for solution of international problems, supported by a strong executive agency.

"In short," he explained, "a kind of world government."

The best way to avoid war, he said, is to have a "firm will to reach agreement . . . the will to peace and the readiness to accept every step needed for this goal."

Einstein said he thought the late Mohandas K. Gandhi preached the "most enlightened" doctrine of modern times.

"We should strive to do things in his spirit—not to use violence in fighting for our cause, but by non-participation in what you believe is evil," Einstein said.

Compton for Stockpile As Reply to Aggression

Berlin, June 18 (U.P.).—Dr. Arthur H. Compton, noted American atomic physicist, today said the United States should keep an atomic bomb stockpile "until Russia gives firm evidence she will not attempt by military force or pressure to force her control upon those we undertake to protect."

Compton, chancellor of Washington University, St. Louis, said the United States "must be prepared to answer aggression with such strength that it will not be to anyone's advantage to initiate war."

"You can count on it," he said in a speech at West Berlin's "free university, "that we will try not to let our strength fall below this level."

Montreal, June 18 (NYHT).—New steps toward coordination of the resources of Canada and the United States in air and anti-submarine defense of North America were disclosed here today.

Canada's antiaircraft command headquarters has just been moved to St. Hubert Airport near here to work in close cooperation with the central headquarters of the air defense group of the Royal Canadian air force. Canada's new long-range, all-weather jet fighter, the AVRO CF-100—which may be purchased in quantity by the United States—is being readied for the first nonstop jet flight between North America and Britain in a few weeks.

The Royal Canadian navy, today bigger than ever in peacetime, plans new exercises with U. S. Navy ships and planes at Atlantic and Pacific ports. The Canadian navy specializes in antisubmarine warfare.

Canadian and American fighters, antiaircraft guns and radar constitute major segments of the plan for defending North America against enemy atomic attacks.

In event of an air assault on the American continent from bases anywhere in the Europe-Asia land mass it would be necessary for both the U. S. Air Force and the RCAF to move with great facility throughout Canada on interception missions designed to halt the enemy along the Arctic frontier before he was able to reach this continent's industrial centers.

This requires Canada to provide the "ground plant"—a big order for a Nation with a total population of about 14 million. Many Canadian strategists such as Wing Comdr. K. G. Patrick, radar expert, believe the task of setting up the radar early warning and control system needed is beyond this Nation's limited finances.

Canada already is spending a larger proportion of its defense budget—about 43 percent—on Air Force matters than any other democratic nation, Brooke Claxton, Canada's dynamic defense minister, says. This permits the RCAF to build up its operational elements, and concentrate on jet fighter squadrons for continental defense. RCAF has 17,300 officers and men backed by a steadily-growing reserve.

Canada hopes to complete this year the 28-year-old job of mapping its sprawling territory through aerial photographs.

Preparations for Attack?

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

DEFENSE STEPS REPORTED—A German magazine has printed these pictures as examples of what it says are preparations for quick destruction in case of a Soviet attack. Upper photo shows series of holes in Rhine River road said to be designed for explosives. dynamite may be placed to blow them up in event of war.

After the war the chambers in the piers of bridges over the Lahn River at Bad Ems in Germany were sealed on French orders. According to pictures in a German news magazine, these chambers have now been unsealed and steel ladders put down to them so they can quickly be filled with explosives.

The pictures touched off an uproar in the Russian-controlled East German press. These newspapers declared the French planned to blow up the side of Lorelei Mountain, damming the Rhine and flooding the country for miles around. The French source desribed this report as "nonsense."

The pictures, along with other preparations that are known, indicate detailed plans have been laid for Allied occupation forces in Germany to fight a delaying action in Western Germany.

The emergency plans provide for evacuation of civilians as rapidly as possible. Emergency signals have been given all dependents of U. S. Army and Air Force officials. When these alarms are given the dependents are supposed to gather up emergency clothing and their children and be prepared to move immediately.

Berlin Unveils Plaque To Father Flanagan

Berlin, June 18 (AP).—Konrad Cardinal von Preysing, Roman Catholic Bishop of Berlin, unveiled a plaque today honoring the memory of the Right Rev. Edward Joseph Flanagan, founder of Boy's Town, Nebr.

Father Flanagan died in Berlin May 15, 1948, while on a tour of German youth camps.

The plaque, donated by German and American Catholics in Berlin, hangs on the wall of the 27th U. S. Army Hospital here.

Saar Deputy To Have Role In Pool Talks

Paris, June 18 (UP).—Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and Saar President Johannes Hoffman have agreed on indirect Saar participation in talks to set up a European iron-coal pool, it was announced today.

Their agreement, reached yesterday in a conference here, provides for Saar Deputy Erwin Muller to represent his homeland when the six-nation conference begins June 20.

France, Italy, Western Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg will participate directly in the talks. Muller will keep France informed of the Saar's viewpoint and, in return, will report on the talks to his government.

Representatives of the Saar's steel and coal industry also may be called to Paris for consultation, the foreign office said. France and the Saar are linked economically.

Schuman said in a statement to the national council of his popular Republican Party today that his steel-iron pool plan calls for control of production but not of sales and use of coal and steel in Europe.

Members of the Office of European Economic Cooperation's executive committee, meanwhile, prepared to go home after reaching agreement on plans for a European payments union.

Late last night the committee reached "complete agreement" on the four thorny points holding up the plan, OEEC Secretary Robert Marjolin told a press confernce today.

These points, Marjolin said, were Belgium's claims for increased Marshall Plan funds, the duration of the proposed payments union, what would happen to debtor nations that had exhausted their credit quotas, and settlement of existing international debts when the union goes into effect.

The plan requires each nation to contribute a quota of its currency to a common fund on which members could draw to cover debts with other countries. These quotas would be matched by Marshall Plan dollars.

The fund would stimulate trade by letting nations pay debts to one country with converted earnings from another country, free from the necessity of maintaining strict trade balances with each other.

Iran U. N. Chief Named Envoy to Washington

Tehran, Iran, June 18 (U.P.).—Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi today announced the appointment of Nasrollah Entezam, chief of the Iranian delegation to the United Nations, as Ambassador to Washington.

He also named former Minister of National Economy Dr. Taqqi Nassr as minister at the Iranian Embassy in Washington.

Party Line

Reds Believed Resigned to German Split

Bonn, June 18 (NYHT).—The Communist parties of East and West Germany have now been told by the Kremlin to regard the present split of Germany as permanent, alterable only by war or revolution, Western intelligence sources said today.

These instructions from which basic developments have already become apparent in both East and West Germany were understood to have been handed to Walter Ulbricht, deputy chancellor of the East German government and strong man of German Communism, during his visit to Moscow in May. Ulbricht circulated them to leaders of the West German party from which the present "leak" of the information has developed.

The Kremlin, these sources state, has concluded that there is now no chance of wooing or winning West Germany by "unity" propaganda, and no hope either of getting any unity agreement with the Western powers which would meet the requirements of the Politburo. German Communists have therefore been told that "under present circumstances"—that is as long as Western occupation continues—Germany will remain split.

The Kremlin sees no chance of any further Communist gains in Western Germany through political means, and, on the assumption that the Allies will remain in more or less permanent occupation, looks only to war or the fomentation of some anti-occupation revolution to alter the basic picture.

This assessment, it is recognized in Allied quarters, may in fact have been the basic thinking of the Russian Politburo for five years, but the importance of the present information is that it has been passed down to the German Communist parties as the basis for future strategy and tactics.

In Western Germany a move has been killed in the Communist party to seek permission to soft-pedal the current "peace and freedom" propaganda and go over instead to an appeal of left-wing socialism.

The Kremlin has laid down that because German unity through political action is now improbable it is interested only in a party of devoted fanatics on whom it can count for a revolutionary base—not in popularity or the number of votes for socialism.

open, through the U. N. a side door for more Communist agents to enter this country. He has exceeded his authority. He has endangered both peace and the structure of the United Nations . . ."

Lie, upon his return from conferences in Moscow and other European capitals, proposed that Chinese Communist delegates replace the Chiang Kai-shek Nationalists in the United Nations as the "basis" for ending the Soviet boycott of the U. N.

The Senators said the United States should be ready with a veto to block Lie's proposal, which "is based solely on an attempt at Soviet blackmail."

Berlin Bell Tower Blown Up Despite Churchmen's Pleas

Berlin, June 18 (U.P.).—The East Berlin Communist city government today blew up the bell tower of the Soviet sector's famed Georgen Church over protests of evangelical church officials.

The city said the 410-foot tower, a landmark on Alexander Platz, a main square, was near collapse. City authorities rejected church pleas that they be allowed to strengthen the tower.

Church officials agreed that the tower had been weakened by subway and street traffic, but denied that it was in danger of falling. The church, built in 1898, stands on a site where churches have stood since 1200.

Vogeler May Be Released

ferred with United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson in London May 12, when he was there for a meeting of the Western Big Three foreign ministers. She said Acheson had given her a "most encouraging message" regarding her husband.

"I can't say more than that," she said at the time. "If I did say too much, harm might be caused. But I now have certain knowledge that something is being done for my husband, and by the highest authorities."

This was the first hint that negotiations were under way for her husband's release. She has not been informed officially of the latest negotiations. Her information came from a newsman here.

However, about two weeks ago, she was told that "things are moving along nicely, and we may have some good news for you soon, but don't get your hopes up."

Mrs. Vogeler said she has been told her husband is in good physical condition and is in the prison of Vacs, 23 miles north of Budapest. The two Vogeler children, Bobby, 10, and Billy, 9, have been told their father may come home soon.

"I could hardly control those two kids," Mrs. Vogeler said. "They jumped up and down, and they wanted me to get out the Christmas presents we put unde rthe tree for Bob last December."

will come under the new Liberty number.

Next step will be the conversion of all four-digit extension numbers to five digit numbers. Present switchboards at the Pentagon and Main Navy will be retained, answering the same number. The Main Navy will be operated only between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday to help carry the load, but either will be capable of operating alone should the other be knocked out.

The complicated new system has been worked out during the past three years by engineers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., A. T. & T., Western Electric and Bell Laboratories.

Everett L. Butler, director of Department of Defense Communications here, said the engineers threw up their hands when the plan was first broached, said "Only Hollywood could think up an idea like that."

Outsiders seeking information in the Defense Department need make only one call if they get the wrong office—not infrequently the case—for the call can be switched. Now, inquirers often call someone at the Navy number and finding the office they want is physically located at the Pentagon, must fork out another nickel for RE 6700.

Butler said the 18,500 separate lines and 33,000 phones of the consolidated system is comparable to that of a city of 200,000 people. It'll be expandable to 30,000 lines and 60,000 phones in an emergency.

One hundred and fifty thousand miles of telephone wire are required for the system and the phone bill each month should run about $145,000, he added. Overall cost, including employes, will be about two million dollars a year.

The British "NO"

—An Editorial from The Washington-Post—

Britain's Labor Party seems to have slammed the door on any hope that the crystallization of the Schuman Plan would find the British government ready to join the combine. The party's executive committee rejects the plan out of fear of a super-government. It would be rash, nevertheless, to jump to the conclusion that the decision is final with Britain. The Schuman Plan has excited a lively interest across party lines there. All the Liberals are for it, and, though they have only 9 seats, they still have a following which gave them 2,500,000 votes at the last election. Favorable, too, is a sizable segment of the Conservative Party. Even the Laborites are (or were) divided, for, in spite of the xenophobic Mr. Bevin, Premier Attlee was quick to accept the principle, and he probably voiced the view of some of the rank-and-file. Doubtless, however, the party in Parliament will close ranks behind its executive committee. In that event the Schuman Plan may present the parties in Britain with an issue at a time when to all intents and purposes issues have been set aside in a kind of informal understanding giving all the appearance of a coalition. Such a development would be highly significant in view of the slender Labor majority.

Power-Mad Planners

It is clear from this decision that the Labor Party is under the dominance of economic planners who are simply applying the logic of their position. Planners don't like to share control. They are the boss of society. With rigid powers over the home market, allocating raw materials, factory space, machines, labor, and investment, they must keep up barriers between themselves and the outside world lest "chaos" (meaning freedom of choice) be introduced into the domestic system. Thus imports from abroad and currency relations with abroad have to be controlled. To be sure, the Labor Party says the plan might be considered favorably if all the European countries were Socialist. But this is plainly an excuse for nonparticipation. The game was given away at a recent conference of the Socialist parties in Europe at Copenhagen. At that meeting the British Labor Party alone maintained that the proposed steel and coal authority should be intergovernmental, so that its decisions would be in fact the subject of dickering among delegates and not made in its own name. What would that mean? Clearly a Europe committed to a jealous group of rival planners all determined that, whatever else happened, their own populations would be fully employed. Under such auspices Europe would be foredoomed to chaos.

Oratory Failed European Unity

Mr. Schuman's concept is dramatically opposed to British Labor's. What he envisages is a board that is supranational, not international. It would make such decisions as what plants to improve and what plants to shut down for keeping abreast of an expanding market. The test would be the most economical use of resources, so as to bring down prices and sell the product in Europe and abroad. But the subsidiary decisions of buying and selling would be made by the market—something that planners cannot tolerate. This is the economics side of the Schuman proposal. It is, however, the politics of the proposal that is the main and exhilarating element in it. Mr. Schuman decided that oratory has had its chance of bringing unity to Europe and has failed and that the time had come for action—and action at the point of crucial contact. He finds that the Laborites in England have never bothered to grapple with the unity problem, or to take it seriously. They forget that both the French and the Germans have provided for the partial abandonment of sovereignty in their constitutions, and that the Schuman Plan thus amounts to implementation.

Unmasking Socialist Lip Service

Mr. Schuman has brought the divergences in Europe to a head; he has presented the British with a choice. The Labor Party has made its own answer—and this is that unity is merely an ideal to which to give lip service, not one to be realized. It wants room to pursue its own autarchic policies, which, in the final analysis, mean an effort to get prosperity at somebody else's expense. With this decision the Labor Party will stand convicted of trying to re-create the world of Dr. Schacht which brought on the last war. The question remains to be answered whether the British people will agree with the Labor Party. Now more than ever Mr. Schuman's hand needs to be upheld by the United States, lest the French, with Britain out of the combination, yield to fear of German predominance, and back away from pursuit of an initiative which is the only statesmanlike action to come out of Europe since the war ended.

35 European Students Due Here on Tour

Thirty-five teen-age students from nine western European countries will arrive in Washington today at 2 p. m. on a 5200-mile bus tour of the United States.

The group spent the past year in American schools under sponsorship of the American Field Service international scholarship program.

The 24-day tour will cover Washington, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Dayton, Indianapolis, Lincoln, Kansas City, Dodge City, Colorado Springs, Denver, North Platte, Cedar Rapids, Milwaukee, Chicago, South Bend, Cleveland, Niagara Falls and Ithaca.

The students, each of whom speaks two languages besides English, will stay at the University of Maryland during their Washington visit.

Their schedule here includes a round table discussion at the World Bank today at 3 p. m., and a reception and tea to which the Ministers and Ambassadors of the students' countries have been invited.

Tuesday the group will tour the Bureau of Engraving and the United States Treasury and visit Congress.

The students are from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, the Netherlands, Norway and Sweden.

King of Britain Loans Old Painting to Sesqui's Art Exhibit

The Sesqui-sponsored "The American Processional" art exhibition today will receive a Revolutionary War watercolor from the personal collection of King George VI of Britain.

The American Processional will be held July 8 to December 17 at the Corcoran Gallery of Art. The National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission is providing $100,000 to arrange for the exhibition of American historical art.

The watercolor, loaned by King George to the Corcoran, will arrive at Washington National Airport this afternoon. Sir Oliver Franks, British mbassador to the United States, will present it on behalf of the King to Robert V. Fleming, Sesqui Commission member and trustee of Corcoran Gallery.

The painting itself is from the Royal Library at Windsor Castle. It shows a naval engagement on Lake Champlain between Revolutionary and British forces on October 11, 1776. It was painted on the scene by British Artist Henry Gilder.

Herman W. Williams, jr., Corcoran Gallery director, selected it as the only American scene in the royal collection.

Williams announced that at least five other nations will loan works of art concerning American history to the Corcoran.

En route to Washington are paintings from the Netherlands, Canada and Mexico. Included are works from such collections as the Victoria and Albert Museum and the National Portrait Gallery, London; the National Gallery at Dublin; the Bibliotheque Nationale and the Bierancourt Museum, France, and the Algemeen Rijksarchief Gallery at The Hague.

Private collections will also be represented. In all, The American Processional will require 12 large galleries, greatest number ever assigned to a special exhibition at the Corcoran.

'La Boheme' Well Sung at Watergate

By Paul Hume

"La Boheme," sung at the Watergate last night, was the best all-around performance given so far in the current run of operas there.

The cast was headed by Mina Cravi as Mimi, Julia Williams as Musetta, Antonio Madasi as Rodolfo, andy Richard Torigi singing Marcello. The two Bohemians joining Madasi and Torigi in the Parisian garret were Mario Fiorella and William Wilderman.

The four men made one of the finest quartets we have heard in the opera in some years. Their horseplay in the first and last acts had good touches, and never entered the realm of cuteness that sometimes spoils the scenes.

Madasi's voice is ideal for the tenor part. But he must learn finesse in acting and sounder musicianship before he will be a dependable artist. He was frequently behind the conductor's clear beat, marring otherwise fine passages.

Torigi led the lower voices in making Puccini's lyric score a vocal triumph throughout. His stage business in acts two and three was particularly good. So was the handling of the chorus in the Cafe Momus scene, and the setting for act three. But the inn for the third act was missing; its replacement, some summery trees, contradicted the snowy background.

Cravi is a superb Mimi. In voice, action, looks, and sympathetic understanding, she makes the part her own—and then shows the audience how lovely it can be in such an artist's employ. Her tone and phrasing at every point were models of pure beauty; we wish she were singing more often this week.

Julia Williams stood up well with Cravi in the ensemble moments, and handled her own large assignment in act two with mature control. It is a relief to hear a soprano both able and willing to sing the scene with fine tone, and to keep to the vocal line Puccini inscribed. Miss Williams is to be commended on all counts.

For his sensitive delivery of some of opera's most appealing music, and splendid pacing of the entire score, Nicholas Resigno deserves another note of praise. His direction is in the finest Italian opera tradition.

Boheme, always one of Fortune Gallo's best productions, was a thoroughgoing success last night. Tonight: Carmen, with Margery Mayer, Leona Scheunemann, Vasso Argyris, and Anton Marco.

Milk Strike Ends With Compromise

sioner Henry G. Baker entered the dispute May 29. Last week, he was joined in mediation efforts by Clyde M. Mills, assistant to Cyrus S. Ching, chief of the Conciliation Service, and by Martin J. O'Connell.

Dairies involved were Chestnut Farms, Wakefield and Harvey, the only ones the union said were being struck; and Alexandria, Thompson, Embassy, Lucerne, Model Farms and Richfield, which closed.

The union charged the latter six dairies with a "lockout," but the complaint was thrown out by Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

The agreement provides for alternating 5-day and 6-day weeks, of 40 and 48 hours, respectively, beginning September 1. During August the employes will work the 6-day, 48-hour week which they worked before the strike, while additional employes are being trained, but will accumulate a day off every two weeks. They will receive these accumulated days off after September 1.

Union officers went from the membership meeting at Turner's Arena to Wardman Park Hotel, where they informed dairy representatives of the union ratification.

Following the tension of the eight-day strike and long negotiation sessions, the two groups smiled their greetings, shook hands and posed for photographers, agreeing they were glad it was over.

M. H. Burchell, secretary-treasurer of Alexandria Dairy and spokesman for the dairy committee, issued this statement for the dairies:

"As fast as the employes return to their jobs, the dairies will put the milk business back into operation.

For his own plant, Burchell said later that some milk deliveries to homes and stores would be made today and that all would be served by Tuesday.

After Union Secretary-Treasurer Eugene R. Hubbard had outlined the settlement terms to reporters, President Harry J. Marx said:

"We have defended the position of the housewife so there will be be no curtailment in milk deliveries." He was referring to the Sunday home deliveries, which will be maintained under the contract.

A number of plant workers went to their dairies almost as soon as the meeting was over, under instructions from union officers.

Burchell estimated the negotiators had spent about 375 hours in their daily sessions, held mostly at Wardman Park Hotel, since May 25.

During much of the final session Saturday and Sunday morning, the Federal conciliators, themselves dog-weary, left the negotiators to talk out their agreement alone. The conciliators went home at 2 a. m. Sunday and the negotiators ironed out the final details by 5 a. m.

Besides Burchell, dairy negotiators included Vice President Herman A. Schulteis of Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase, General Manager James Otto Phillips of Wakefield, Labor Negotiator Francis J. Sheehan of Safeway Stores, and Lee Thompson, owner of Thompson's Dairy.

For the union, besides Hubbard and Marx, negotiators included Albert Dietrich, international representative, Thomas Haggerty, international vice-president, Vernon Reid, and Charles W. Fuller, business representatives, J. J. Gensor, vice president, as well as Floyd Lawrence, Grover Sutphin and John Kirkpatrick, trustees.

The Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, which had been on a 24-hour alert for several days, went into action at about 4 p. m. when the word came through to bring in the milk.

By about 5:30 p. m. close to 200 milk drivers had been notified, and something like 25,000 gallons of milk was being delivered to the dairies last nght.

The association estimated the strike loss to its farmer members at $70,000 daily. The bulk of the 160,000 gallons normally supplied daily to Washington was sold to milk products manufacturers during the deadlock.

Philip D. Digges, president of Model Dairy, announced all customers who received their last deliveries on Friday, June 9, will get milk today. Those last served on Saturday, June 10, will receive milk Tuesday, he said.

Several suburban stores, which imported milk from points in Virginia and Maryland during the strike, will have an oversupply today, it was reported.

One such place is the Westover Market at 5863 N. Washington blvd., Arlington, whose manager, Nathan Movitz, said last night he will put on sale today 1200 quarts of Baltimore milk at 14 cents a quart. Movitz estimated he sold 15,000 quarts last week.

The Capital was unprepared for the eight-day drought. When the union began talking about a strike, the public and governmental officials viewed it casually, not believing it could happen here.

Then Saturday, June 10, at 11:30 a. m., the strike broke, cutting the city's supply to a trickle.

Consumers stormed three non-union dairies, pushing up their normal production. Stores sent trucks to Richmond, Charlottesville, Manassas, Va., and Baltimore, Md., for supplies.

Such milk could be sold in Maryland and Virginia stores, but the Washington Health Department clamped down on sales and even attempted to halt giveaways. The Corporation Counsel ruled this was permissible, however.

Pittsburghers Pray For Return of Milk

Pittsburgh, June 18 (U.P.).—Milk starved Pittsburgh turned out for church services in "unusually large" numbers today to pray for "deliverance" on the 11th day of an AFL milkmen's strike.

Special prayers were read for a quick end of the walkout which has deprived babies and invalids of vitally-needed milk. But for the three million persons in the strike-affected area there was no immediate relief in sight.

A three-hour conference between union leaders and the Greater Pittsburgh Milk Dealers Association ended at 1 p. m. EDT with no report of progress. Another meeting was set for 9 a. m. Monday.

Ewing Salutes Israel Labor

Oscar R. Ewing reported yesterday on "the great democratic labor movement in Israel" which, he said, "has no truck with totalitarianism.

The Federal Security Administrator addressed the American Trade Council, National Committee for Labor Israel, at Hotel Shoreman.

He said the Histadrua labor organization—Israel's largest union—should be saluted "for having the wisdom and courage to make a forthright rejection of communism" by withdrawing from the Russian-dominated World Federal of Trade Unions.

Nun Clubbed on Head By Unseen Attacker

Kansas City, June 18 (AP).—A 26-year-old Catholic nun was clubbed on the head and arm by an unseen attacker as she slept in a bedroom at the Sisters of St. Francis here early today.

The nun, Sister Mary Patricia Delaney of Nevada, Mo., was treated at a hospital for four scalp wounds and a bruise on the right arm.

She and two other nuns from a Nevada convent are attending a summer music course.

Price Of Liquor

The House District Committee exercised good judgment in squashing the McMillan bill to introduce "voluntary" price-fixing into the liquor industry here. The bill was similar to other efforts to impose "fair-trade" laws on Washington which have failed of enactment in the past. It would have permitted wholesalers to bind retailers not to resell liquor at less than stipulated prices. The result of such legislation could hardly have been other than, as Chairman Payne of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board said, to stifle competition and raise prices. According to Mr. Payne, prices in areas where fair-trade laws are in effect are about $1 per bottle higher than in the District.

At the same time we hope that defeat of the McMillan bill also spells an end to the unsatisfactory substitute regulations proposed by the ABC Board. These would prohibit so-called "loss leader" advertising of an item at less than cost, and would make illegal the granting of special quantity discounts to retailers by wholesalers. These differ only in degree from the McMillan bill, for their effect also would be to inhibit competiton by cutting down the advantage to large retailers.

The rationale for all these measures has been that conditions in the liquor industry are chaotic. It is undeniable that small retailers are hard put to it to compete with larger houses which can order in quantity, although convenience in location is a factor to be taken into account. Nonetheless, policing the industry against possible violations of the law resulting from intense competition and price-cutting is the ABC Board's job. It has given no indication that it is not competent to deal with the situation.

The concern of the public, with respect to liquor sales, is, first, that there be sufficient regulation and check to prevent sales to minors, misbranding and similar abuses; and second, that sales be at the lowest feasible price. Fair-trade laws and similar restrictions are a form of quasi-tariff protection, the advantage of which is evident enough so far as some liquor interests are concerned, but rather remote as affects the consumer. With adequate policing, we believe that the public interest is best served by maximum competition in liquor as in other commodities.

Lobby Exchange

In a sizzling letter addressed to Chairman Buchanan of the House committee investigating lobbying activities Clarence Randall, president of the Inland Steel Co., refused to supply the information asked for on expenditures "dealing with public issues which might be the subject of Federal legislative action." We sympathize with Mr. Randall's objections to some of the questions, since the excessive amount of detailed information requested would involve a tremendous amount of work and considerable expense. He would have been justified, too, in asking why some important corporations were omitted from the list to which questionnaires were sent, and whether the committee proposed to extend its inquiry to labor unions. (The latter question has just been answered in the affirmative by Mr. Buchanan following sharp criticism from the floor of the House of the committee's allegedly arbitrary selective methods.)

We think that Mr. Randall showed poor judgment, however, in refusing his cooperation and challenging the committee's authority to ask for information that it needs in order to determine whether the lobbying act should be broadened. The amount and sources of funds spent to influence public opinion is a matter of vital importance to a democratic nation. For if public opinion is molded by undercover lobbying, or disguised propaganda, legislative policies may be influenced by special groups in disregard of the public interest.

What Mr. Randall said to Senator Douglas on the occasion of a recent trip to Washington is, he asserts, "strictly my own affair, and I shall not account for it to any other member of Congress . . . And if I wish to go once more to Washington to see Senator Douglas, I shall not ask your (Mr. Buchanan's) permission." The answer to that irate declaration is, of course, that Mr. Randall has not been requested to supply a transcript of his conversation with the Senator from Illinois; and it is nonsense to imply that the committee inquiry imposes any check on his freedom of movement. However, when Mr. Randall or any other company official journeys to Washington at company expense to confer with a member of Congress on a public matter, we think his trip ceases to be a purely private affair and becomes a matter of legitimate concern to a committee investigating lobbying.

Social Security

With party leaders on both sides in favor of liberalizing the social security system, Senate passage of a bill extending coverage and increasing the scale of benefits is virtually assured. In a series of editorials The Washington Post has discussed the chief provisions of the House bill which was passed at the last session and the proposed Senate revisions. In both cases the proposals for extension of coverage are inadequate, but they are a step in the right direction. Moreover, it is encouraging to discover that influential Senators of both parties favor wider coverage leading eventually to all-in coverage.

Under either bill the proposed increases in the scale of payments would provide fairly adequate subsistence benefits for the great majority of workers. But in view of the sharp rise in wages and the 70 percent increase in living costs during the past decade as well as the extremely low level of benefits under the present law, we favor the higher scale of benefits of the Senate bill which increases average payments for retired workers from 85 to 90 percent.

Under the Senate bill the maximum wage on which benefits may be computed would remain at the present $3000 level. That is much too low, since it prevents workers in higher income categories from qualifying for higher pensions affording more protection against wage losses. Ten years ago all but a negligible fraction of wage earners in covered employment earned less than $3000, so that benefits were at that time based on the total earnings of the insured, barring minor exceptions. Today the wage base would have to be raised to $4800 to cover all the wages of 95 percent of insured workers. Consequently, there is strong support in the Senate for an amendment to the pending bill that would raise the maximum wage on which benefits can be computed to $3600—the figure set by the House bill. That would still be too low a base, providing too little protection against wage loss for workers in the higher wage brackets. But it, too, would be a step in the right direction. Together with the more liberal Senate formula for computing benefits, it would further increase the scale of benefits for higher paid workers, who would, of course, be called on to contribute more to the insurance fund.

The Senate proposal to freeze payroll taxes at existing levels until 1956 instead of raising the rates next January, as under the House bill, is debatable. But in view of the controversy over methods of financing the system as well as the strong political opposition to tax increases at this time, it is perhaps wise to postpone action on tax increases for the time being, especially as the proposed increases in coverage would bring new taxpayers into the system. Moreover, if the tax base were to be increased, a good many workers already covered and their employers would have to pay higher taxes. Finally, at present levels Senator George estimates that the receipts from payroll taxes will produce sufficient revenue to meet all benefit obligations for the next five years. As a result, the tax freeze would not have an inflationary effect on the economy.

The Senate bill omits a provision included in the House bill for pensioning workers who become permanently and totally disabled before reaching retirement age. We hope that this provision will be restored in justice to disabled workers who have made substantial contributions to the insurance system and in the great majority of cases have no other form of protection against a loss of earning power that compels them to rely on public or private charity until they reach the age of 65, if they ever do. Unfortunately, strong pressure has been brought to bear on the Senate to reject disability insurance under the mistaken impression that it would be an entering wedge for compulsory health insurance. It is unlikely, therefore, that this controversial provision of the House bill will be acceptable to the Senate.

On the other hand, there is widespread support for an amendment to the Senate bill calling for an expert study of the social security system. As the country moves toward universal coverage, the question whether to retain the present trust fund method of financing or to substitute a pay-as-you-go system assumes increasing importance. Although The Washington Post believes that the present contributory system is preferable, there is room for honest difference of opinion on that score. However, action cannot be deferred until a solution has been found for all unsettled problems. Amendatory legislation is needed at once to shore up the present weak structure and lay the foundation for a comprehensive system that will be both adequate and nondiscriminatory.

More on RFC

Senator Fulbright hit the nail on the head when he said that the President's plan for transferring the RFC to the Department of Commerce is "untimely." Before changing the status of that agency Congress should decide whether it is to remain in existence, and whether its lending powers should be enlarged as the President recommends. In our opinion the answer to both questions ought to be a positive "No." The Hoover Commission in its report on "Federal Business Enterprises" warned that direct Government lending "opens up dangerous possibilities of waste and favoritism to individuals and enterprises. It invites political and private pressure or even corruption. Emergencies may arise in depression, war, national defense, or disaster which must be met in this way. But direct lending should be absolutely avoided except for emergencies." This statement clearly indicates that the commission favored curtailment of RFC activities, though it did not go as far as its task force, which recommended liquidation of the RFC.

Even if Congress should decide to prolong the life of the RFC, its transfer to the Department of Commerce or any other Government department would be most unwise, since there would always be danger that the head of the designated department would further his political objectives, at the expense of sound lending policies. Secretary Sawyer's argument that the financial operations of the RFC should be coordinated with the nonfinancial business-promotional program of the Department of Commerce actually emphasizes the dangerous potentialities of the proposal to put a financing agency under the suupervision of an official not trained to deal with financial problems. Instead of making for greater efficiency and economy, the transfer would, to quote Senator Fulbright, "enhance the central powers of Government" and contribute "to the destruction of our traditional system of checks and balances."

Postal Subsidies

Postmaster General Donaldson has struck back at critics of the recent cuts in mail delivery by calling for an end to "hidden subsidies" on three classes of mail. Deficits on second and third class mail, postal cards, parcel post and special services, he says, aggregate about 435 million dollars yearly. The implication is that if these deficits were removed by higher rates, deliveries could be restored and everything would be hunky-dory.

There have been a good many shrill outcries from newspapers and magazines over the proposals to raise second-class rates. Publications enjoying second-class privileges would be in a better position to protest if they would agree that a reasonable increase, commensurate with the increase in costs, is altogether warranted. The House, for example, has approved a bill which would increase rates generally by some 130 million dollars annually; 15 million dollars of this would come from second-class mail. Perhaps this figure, as respects newspapers and magazines, is too low. It by no means follows, however, that Mr. Donaldson's program to raise second-class rates 100 percent is logical, or that it is in the public interest for every class of mail to pay its way completely.

In viewing the matter strictly as one of deficits, for example, Mr. Donaldson entirely overlooks the element of public interest in the cheap dissemination of reading matter. Congress long ago took the position that low rates on publications, though they might contribute to the growth of large publishing ventures, were essential to the spread of information and enlightenment. If, under Mr. Donaldson's proposal, publications were to charge rural subscribers the full cost of delivery, prices would be prohibitive. The same may be said of other mail services that incur deficits. While a reasonable across-the-board increase is entirely tenable, there is an element of social service attached to the Postoffice which requires that it not be a strict cash-and-carry affair.

What the public has a right to expect from the Postoffice is not that it be completely self-supporting, but that there be value received for each dollar spent. In this connection Congress has a great deal to answer for. Seven of the nine recommendations of the Hoover Commission to streamline administrative machinery are pigeonholed. Particularly disheartening is the manner in which the Comptroller General has blocked every effort to introduce a modern accounting and budget system; the Senate Postoffice Committee also bears the onus for having squashed the bill to take the appointment of postmasters out of politics, despite indorsement by the President and postal groups. Other stalled measures include the plan for postal regionalization, authority for the Postmaster General to fix rates for special services, and the separation of air mail pay from subsidy.

If these remedies were enacted into law, along with a moderate rate increase, there could be a vast improvement in postal efficiency along with substantial reduction of the deficit. But the idea of a completely self-supporting Postoffice seems to us neither realistically attainable nor in the basic public interest.

Uruguay's Friendship

Throughout the Western Hemisphere the small republic of Uruguay has a great reputation as "freedom-loving" and "democratic." Today the people of Uruguay are presenting to the people of the United States a statue of the Uruguayan national hero, Jose Artigas—a statue which will rest on Constitution ave. between the two Pan American Union buildings. The presentation is important both as a commemoration of the 100th anniversary of Artigas' death and as a testimony to the very real friendship that exists between the two countries. That friendship has found Uruguay and the United States stanchly allied, both formally and morally, in most major causes affecting the hemisphere.

Jose Artigas himself is best known for his part in winning independence from Spain of the so-called River Plate provinces, beginning in 1810. He had read Tom Paine and had studied the American Revolution and he had a firm admiration for the Federal constitutional system. His insistence on a republican form of government made his career tempestuous, and he died in semi-exile in Paraguay. But his ideas lived on, and they are reflected in Uruguay's strong representative tradition. He is honored today not as a wielder of the sword, but as the exponent of an ideal of freedom which ought to be the heart of the inter-American system.

Nehru's 'Neutrality'

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru has unwittingly incurred the displeasure of some people by making a stand for neutrality at the present juncture. They find his policy of aloofness extremely perplexing, especially at this time, when human freedom is being persistently menaced by a powerful and highly organized imperialism. They expected Pandit Nehru to back up democracy, rather than reduce his position and prestige to the unmeaning role of a spectator, while a great power was unscrupulously employing force and artifice to subjugate the free nations of the world.

This view is obviously based on a very erroneous estimate of Pandit Nehru's foreign policy. In reality, his neutral stand was actuated by a desire to create a surrounding influence that would be propitious to peace; for he had a feeling that Indian neutrality might help mitigate the prevailing tension to some extent.

Pandit Nehru has profound faith in moral and human values, and that enables him to envisage the most baffling questions with a feeling of stout optimism. His recent talks with the Pakistan Prime Minister provide an enlightening circumstance, that should serve to dispel the notion that he is an unpractical idealist.

He has completely identified himself with democracy, and will not allow any alien mentality to intrude usurpingly upon it in this country at least. He is also aware of the preponderance of pro-democratic feeling among his countrymen. It seems that the Indian people have intuitively grasped the correctness and equity of the democratic view; and it is no wonder, that it should exercise increasing attraction upon their minds and loyalties.

And that view, as we understand it, is this: that a nation's liberty is inviolable, and must be honored and kept sacred from infringement; and that a social system that recognizes the freedom of the individual, and gives scope to initiative and enterprise, is morally more sound and higher in quality, than the one that reposes on fear and regimentation.

Indians have come to regard this view, known as the American ideology, with pleased estimation. They have been particularly impressed by America's humaneness in giving the underprivileged nations, and those with broken-down economies, a leg up.

I should like to make clear that Indians under Nehru's leadership have decided in favor of democracy. They have a spiritual conviction, that democracy will triumph in the long run; not because of its battleships or armies or atom bombs, but because it has on its side the two great and imperishable truths—one human, revealing itself in freedom of conscience, freedom of speech, expression and initiative; the other divine, rooted in man's deep and eternal faith in Providence.

D. C. Labor Department

Your correspondents on the milk strike have failed thus far to draw the conclusion that fairly leaps to my mind. The ineptitude with which the strike situation has been handled is dramatic advertisement of the need for local self-government and reorganization of government as envisioned in the Kefauver bill.

Elected officials voted into office by the people and responsible to them could not afford to be casual in their treatment of an emergency affecting the health and welfare of their constituents. The contrast between local government's functioning in Pittsburgh and the District is interesting in this connection.

The most competent and faithful administrator however, would find it impossible to deal effectively with a labor dispute in the District where no machinery for dealing with such disputes exists. Furthermore, there are some five separate labor-connected agencies of local, Federal or mixed character expensively pursuing their uncoordinated ways. Without an efficient central labor department for the city, labor crises will be all too familiar in the years to come.

Preventing Delinquency

Perhaps your Frederick, Md., correspondent, Mrs. Mirian Bolduan, (June 12) needs an explanation of the program I suggested (June 7) and what children it will help most. In her answer she spoke of mothers and fathers, and it was a very good point she brought out. My program of compulsory nursery schools is for the homes that do not have a father—for homes where a father does not accept his responsibility to his family let alone to the community. The children from these homes are seen at a disadvantage by the outside world.

No one can question parents' responsibility to their children. But please remember the mothers who must shoulder the burden of being both mother and father to their children. The ones who must earn a living—the ones who are faced with overcrowded living conditions. Think of the children being raised without a Bible in the home and who have never uttered, "Thank you, God."

Lesson From History

On August 24, 1898, the Russian Czar Nicolas II issued a manifest in which he invited the world to discuss peace and disarmament. The meeting of the big powers that was called for this purpose is known as the first Hague Conference. After more than half a century, the Czar's manifest reads as if it were written in our own time. A few sentences taken from it will prove this statement.

"The preservation of peace has been put forward as the object of international policy; in its name great states have concluded between themselves powerful alliances. . . Hundreds of millions are devoted to acquiring terrible engines of destruction, which, though today regarded as the last word of science, are destined tomorrow to lose all value in consequence of some fresh discovery in the same field.

"The economic crisis, due in great part to the system of armament to the utmost, and the continual danger which lies in this massing of war material, are transforming the armed peace of our days into a crushing burden, which the peoples have more and more difficulty in bearing. This would inevitably lead to the very cataclysm which it is desired to avert, and the horrors of which make every thinking man shudder in advance."

The big world powers in 1899 rejected the idea of disarmament. Instead, they increased their armaments to an unheard of extent, for the purpose—they said—of saving the cause of peace. The outcome of their policy was two world wars. Today humanity is doing exactly the same thing. Must we make history repeat itself in the same stupid, criminal, and careless manner?

REA Loan In South Carolina

I note in your June 13 issue a communication from Mr. McMeekin of the South Carolina Electric and Gas Co. regarding the Rural Electrification Administration loan to a group of South Carolina farmers. I hope you will permit me to call attention to the two questions which appear to me to be basic to the clarification of this controversy.

First, was REA justified in making the loan? Second, the loan having been made, can REA now revoke it?

In regard to the making of the loan, I have said, and I repeat, that I approved this loan only after the most careful consideration of all the facts. The South Carolina cooperative, in my judgment, fully met the requirements of REA's policy regarding loans of this type—a policy with which Mr. McMeekin says he agrees. Inadequate service to the cooperatives was substantiated beyond any reasonable doubt and the quarter-million-dollar annual saving was estimated on the basis of anticipated co-op power needs for 1956—and not for some year in the distant future, as Mr. McMeekin erroneously surmises. Incidentally, present consumption trends indicate that our estimates made at the time of the loan were too low rather than too high.

Despite these facts, Mr. McMeekin does not agree with the conclusions reached in making this loan. That is his privilege. It seems unfair, however, to suggest, as he does, that we should have made our decision in January, 1949, on the basis of an alleged wholesale rate reduction which he himself does not claim to have proposed until the following September. As a matter of fact, even the present 5½-mill offer of his company would affect only about half of the cooperatives involved in the loan. The cooperatives' appraisal of this offer as nothing more than a "spite rate," seems to be borne out by Mr. McMeekin's own public declarations that it was made in "a desperate effort" to block the co-op's efforts to construct their own lines.

In regard to the question of whether or not REA can revoke the loan, no expression of Mr. McMeekin's can alter the fact that the Rural Electrification Administration and the Central Electric Power Cooperative have entered into a binding loan contract. Moreover, on the basis of this contract both the cooperative and the Santee Cooper Power Authority have made other contracts and commitments involving substantial expenditures. It would be the height of capriciousness and irresponsibility for a Federal agency to attempt to repudiate its contract. Such an attempt would serve to undermine the confidence of the people in their Government.

Administrator, Rural Electrification Administration.

A National School Board?

A Communication

IT WAS SURPRISING to find such a stanch supporter of education as Mrs. Agnes A. Meyer arguing contrary to the lessons of experience in regard to organization of the Federal agency for education. Her article in The Washington Post of June 11 does not do her justice. She says a national school board is unrealistic and that education should again become a part of a department as it was before 1939. She favors Reorganization Plan No. 27, which gives the Secretary of Health, Education and Security authority to integrate in his own office ". . . central administrative services in the fields of procurement, budgeting, accounting, library, legal and other services and activities common to the several agencies of the department" . . . and to transfer personnel, records and funds as he may deem necessary for these purposes.

Mrs. Meyer says those who favor a national board of education to escape such domination are "removed . . . from the realities of life," especially political realities. Quite the contrary is the fact. The supporters of the national board are the teachers, administrators and citizens on the educational firing line. The chief State school officers, the principal sponsors of the national board, are State officials who understand politics if anyone does. The American Association of School Administrators represents thousands of local superintendents of schools who are anything but naive. The National School Boards Association represents some 400,000 local school board members who are realistic about schools. These and other laymen and educators base their support of a national board and their opposition to Plan 27 squarely on experience.

The national board would take education as far as possible out of partisan politics. This is even more necessary in the Federal Government than in local school districts. There is more reason for a nonpartisan agency for education in the Federal Government, considering the possibilities for Federal propaganda and thought control, than for an independent Federal medical agency.

MRS. MEYER appears not to comprehend the policy functions of the proposed national board and their separation from the administrative functions of the Commissioner of Education. The national board bills introduced by Senators Morse, Thomas, Hunt, Kefauver and Mundt and by Representative Kearns do not propose the type of administrative commission she defines as obsolete. The proposed board of education is new to the Federal Government but has proved successful in the State governments. Some State education organizations, such as that in Connecticut, are similar to that which S. 656 proposes for the Federal Government. Some are larger, both in terms of funds and personnel, than the United States Office of Education. No one supposes the local school boards and a Federal board would be analagous in function, although both need protection from partisan politics.

There is every indication from State experience that a Commissioner of Education would be restricted to operations within the policies of the board; that such boards do well for education in the budgetary process; that cooperation with other agencies of government is not affected, except favorably by elimination of jurisdictional confusion; that the policy board system has superior ability to resist pressure groups "with their own fish to fry in the field of education."

The proposed national board is not an advisory commission of the type which has so often made recommendations only to have them ignored by Federal political officials. Far from obsolete, it is directly in line with the newest type of organization in the Federal Government. It differs from the National Science Foundation board only that it would employ its own executive officer, the Commissioner of Education, while the President will appoint the director of the foundation. Other criticisms Mrs. Meyer makes of the national board of education apply to the Science Foundation board.

Mrs. Meyer says her chief objection to taking the Office of Education out of the Federal Security Agency is that she believes this flies in the face of best modern thinking on education as a social function integrated with health and welfare. Co-operation among all these services is indispensable but, judging from her article on Fairfax County, not even Mrs. Meyer believes that such co-operation demands organic mixing of education and other governmental agencies at either State or local levels. For the Federal Government, however, she reverses her field and abandons the education agency to partisan domination.

WE OUGHT to seek new and ingenious ways to bring government abreast of current problems. Successful operation of democracy in certain aspects of foreign affairs, administration of justice, control of atomic energy and organized education and health services requires much freedom from political partisanship. More than a neat departmental organization chart is needed to preserve these growing edges of democratic experience with the Office of Education and State education agencies in organizing the Federal education agency, rather than subject the State education agencies to the necessity of dealing with a Federal agency unsuitable for educational needs.

EDGAR FULLER,
Executive Secretary, National Council of Chief State School Officers.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Peacemakers Of Paris

TOMORROW (Tuesday) the formal negotiations on the Schuman Plan will begin in Paris.

Lippmann

Italy and the Benelux countries are taking part, thus giving the project a European character. But the key countries are France and Germany. Here for the first time since the war they are negotiating as equals. Here for the first time in the long history of their rivalry they are negotiating for the purpose of making a lasting peace. They are already agreed that the only way to achieve a lasting peace is by forming a lasting partnership.

IT IS natural to be skeptical and cautious and not to count the chickens until they are hatched. But we live in such evil times that we no longer dare to believe, for fear of being disappointed again, that anything good and peaceable and creative can be done.

But we need not doubt that it is possible, even probable, that the Franco-German wars can now be concluded forever—as more than a century ago the Franco-British wars were concluded forever. In this war there was as between France and Germany no victor and no vanquished. Both the French and the Germans have known defeat and occupation. In any future war, in this epoch of atomic warfare, neither alone is big enough to play a leading part. For both the road to security and to independence and to influence is to come so close together that the European continent can rally to them and can rally around them.

The United Nations, the Marshall Plan, the Atlantic Pact, the British and the American guarantees against aggression, remain and are indispensable. But they are not enough. Europe can be saved in the end only by the Europeans, and that—the salvation of Europe—is what the Schuman Plan is about.

AN OBJECTIVE measure of the importance of the French offer and of the German agreement is that the other great powers are being compelled to clarify their position towards Europe.

The Schuman proposal, once the German government agreed to it, made it necessary for the British to decide whether in fact they are, as are France, Germany and Italy, a European country. The answer they have made is that they are not Europeans, and that they will not and cannot commit themselves to Europe. They have stood apart too long. Their attachments and their sentiments are so non-European that they cannot think and feel and act as equal and full members of a European community.

It is arguable that they are mistaken and that the destiny of the British Isles is now bound up with the destiny of the European continent. But the British are unable to feel that they are Europeans. And when we see the Socialists objecting for Socialist reasons and so many powerful anti-Socialists objecting for imperial reasons, it is evident that a very large, probably a preponderant, mass of the British people simply do not wish to be Europeans.

And so they will not become good Europeans if they are pushed and prodded into Europe. It is better to respect their feelings, to accept the fact that they will not participate fully, and then to hold them to the consequence of their own choice:—which is that they must not intervene inside Europe in order to prevent the Europeans from uniting as closely as the Europeans deem it possible and necessary and desirable to unite.

THE SOVIET government has also made a difficult choice. It has ordered Walter Ulbricht, the Soviet agent who is Deputy Premier of East Germany, to go to Warsaw and to sign an agreement accepting the annexation by Poland of the eastern territory. The Kremlin cannot have enjoyed doing that. For by this action it has laid aside for the time being—thrown away would be too strong a word—its ace of trumps in dealing with Germany. By closing the door so spectacularly to a revision of the frontier, the Soviet Union is committed to Poland, is committed against German national sentiment and interest, and the German Communists, who have been presenting themselves as the restorers of German unity, are placed in the unhappy position of being the agents of the dismemberment of Germany.

It is difficult to think that the Kremlin would have made this unpleasant and expensive decision unless it had to do so. What, then, can have been the reasons? One can only guess. Mine is that the Politburo has recognized the Franco-German coming together as meaning: first, that they cannot offer the German nation a more attractive future than is now opened up to it by the French offer, and that therefore it is useless to alienate the Poles by a policy which cannot now be expected to seduce and appease the Germans; and second, that the attraction of European unity around a Franco-German partnership,—with its promise of a Europe which is to be independent—is so great upon the Poles that the Kremlin felt it necessary to give up its influence in Germany in order to cement the Polish alliance.

THUS by the British decision not to participate in the Franco-German partnership, and by the Soviet decision to hold Poland at the price of losing its influence in Germany, the initiative and the responsibility for the shaping of Europe have devolved upon the French and the Germans. May they succeed in their task. If Europe is to be more than a collection of satellite and client states—without purpose or policy of its own—without security—without the dignity befitting the true place of Europe in the world,—then the governments that are meeting in Paris this week must achieve the union which they have agreed to form.

Grin and Bear It

"A person simply doesn't drive down the wrong side of the street, run through a red light and bump into a truck and discuss it with a mere 'yes' or 'no' . . ."

Red Hunt Is Criticized

tion for President in 1952, Dewey grinned and replied:

"He's an extremely able man. I'm sure that he'd make an able President, but I'm not exercising any political role at this time."

Warren, at a news conference, led off in the criticism of McCarthy. Duff followed an hour or so later.

Said Warren of McCarthy's charges:

"Personally, I don't like to see blanket accusations against groups or individuals. I have seen statements in the newspapers hat there were 81 card-carrying Communists in the State Department. Now I haven't seen any evidence in the papers directly bearing on that point."

He said he wasn't going to vouch for the loyalty of all those whose cases are under review. But so far, he said, he hasn't seen any proof to back up McCarthy's charges about the "81."

"Consequently," Warren told the reporters, "I don't think good comes of making accusations of that kind unless there is an intention to prove the statements in court through democratic processes."

"I think the whole situation is of such importance—from the standpoint of security, our position in the world, and the confidence of people in Government—that we should have a bi-partisan investigation that would be wholly objective in its approach."

It was important, he said, that the American people be made to feel that the investigation was thorough and fair, and free of the acrimony now rampant on Capitol Hill.

Governor Duff, an aggressive, robust man of 67 with red hair streaked with gray, had this to say of Senator McCarthy:

"Personally, I feel that it is unwise to make random blanket charges without specific data to back them up. I always like to have specific data when I make charges."

Duff said he didn't know enough about the Washington scene to be able to say whether McCarthy represented the Republican Party in making his charges.

"It distressed me," he said, "that the accusations made at the time were not officially documented, considering the seriousness of the charges."

The Pennsylvania executive made it clear that, in criticising McCarthy, he was not acting as a champion of the Truman Administration.

He said it was a great mistake for the Government to keep an air of mystery around the Communist-in-Government controversy, and he rapped the Administration for not letting "the light of day" shine on the matter.

Duff said that because of the Hiss case, and the widespread suspicion concerning Communists in the Government service, the controversy would be "a considerable issue in 1950."

He said his own impression was that the Administration hadn't "come clean" and made all the facts public.

Duff said one of the issues in Pennsylvania would be what he referred to as Mr. Truman's attempt to wipe out the GOP by campaigning for Democratic candidates for the Senate and House.

He granted that Mr. Truman had a right to go in the States in this off-year election, and said it was "O.K." with him if he went into Pennsylvania. If there was going to be a fight, he said, it might as well be a good one.

"I don't minimize him as an antagonist," Duff said of the President, "and I admire him as a fighter."

He was reminded that Mr. Truman planned to go to Valley Forge, Pa., June. 30, to attend a Boy Scout jamboree. Did he regard that as a political expedition?

Duff laughed and said he did not. He said that, as chief executive of Pennsylvania, we would be on hand to welcome Mr. Truman.

"Big Red," as they call Duff, said the President's action in vetoing the basing-point bill would be an important issue in Pennsylvania.

Governor Dewey saw reporters two hours after the Duff interview. He had been out on the Greenbrier's No. 1 golf course earlier playing with his son, Tom, and Jim Hagerty, his executive assistant. He shot 100, which meant he was way off his game.

Having said "no" in connection with a third term as Governor, Dewey seemed relieved. He talked about the long hours he had put in since he entered public life as a racket-buster, and about the pain and loss of sleep he had endured because of his bursitis ailment.

"Do you consider yourself out of politics?" he was asked.

"No," was the quick reply. "I'm still the last Republican nominee for President. As such I have responsibilities, and I will continue to carry them out to the best of my ability."

He said he would endeavor to express a point of view which he thought the party ought to represent, and play a useful role in shaping public opinion.

He said it would not be a mistake to assume he was backing Lieut. Gov. Joseph R. Hanley for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in New York.

Dewey, who first gained fame as a prosecutor of the underworld, was asked if he thought there would be any results from the crime investigation now being made by a committee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.).

"There might be," he said. "I never did it that way, but that doesn't mean there won't be results."

He explained that his own method was to bring indictments.

Matter Of Fact

Europe 1950: Surrender?

WE HAVE PERHAPS three or four years to enjoy ourselves, if we go on with business-as-usual, politics-as-usual and self-delusion-as-usual. The joyride, one hopes, will be very agreeable. But at the end will come a big bang, or more likely a small, self-pitying whimper. And our world, the free world of the West, will then come to an end.

Such is the best summary this correspondent can offer, of all the mingled experiences of a long expedition of inquiry abroad. It is offered despite a belief that, unlike Hitler, the masters of the Kremlin do not want a general war, because of the inner weaknesses of the Soviet system. The danger now, in fact, is much less a general war than an enormous surrender, which will give the Kremlin all the fruits of victory without a shot being fired.

ONLY A VERY SIMPLE act of imagination is necessary, in order to understand this danger which hangs over us. First, you must imagine a Soviet Union with its war preparations completed, having a substantial stock of atomic weapons, an impressive strategic air force, a vast army, and every other auxiliary of military power. Second, you must imagine that this great Soviet military power is confronted by a half-armed America, and above all by a western Europe without serious defenses in the air or on the ground.

This will be the world rather soon, unless the Western nations take drastic measures to rebuild their defenses. Moreover, this intensified defense effort must begin at once if it is to show real results by the time of danger, 1953-54. No one should be misled on these points by the barrage of soothing lies, about new weapons to be produced five years from now and so forth, that is emanating from the politics-as-usual experts in Washington.

The consequences of this new world situation—of unchallengeable Soviet strength confronting irredeemable Western weakness—are also mathematically predictable. After all, it is only a little more than a decade since Hitler took the Rhineland and Austria, the Sudetenland, Czechoslovakia and Danzig, without firing a shot. Hitler did all this simply by inspiring the terror that saps the will to resist. In the new world situation that is now arising, western Europe in the fifties will be Czechoslovakia in the thirties.

Even now, the Kremlin strategists are already preparing for the time when, as they hope, they will be able to terrify Europe into submission. They are transforming the western Europe Communist parties into simple para-military groupings, with the sole function of creating disorder and division at the most useful moment. They are using all means, like the "Partisans of Peace" with their terror propaganda about atomic warfare, in order to foster in Europe a mood of appeasement and submission. They will certainly create this mood, if the United States now abdicates as leader of the West in order to go on a national joyride.

OUR ALLIES will then grow bitter against us. And we shall grow bitter against ourselves, as the real meaning of our act becomes apparent. The whole Atlantic alliance will be rent with recrimination and rendered impotent to act, even before the final crisis.

Even now, one can envision the form this final crisis may take. Assume that western Europe remains defenseless, and that the existing deterrents, such as our strategic Air Force, are rendered ineffective by Soviet re-armament. If the present line is held in the Far East, the first move will then probably be a new Soviet blockade in Berlin. There will be no airlift to answer this blockade, because the Soviets now have the power to disrupt the airlift by radar-jamming. There will be nothing to do, except abandon the Berlin position, or send an armed convoy into the city, or threaten the Soviet Union with atomic bombardment.

Anyone who recalls the first Berlin blockade, and the horrified response to Gen. Lucius Clay's project for an armed convoy, can predict the future choice. The nations of western Europe, in the very shadow of the new Soviet power, wholly open to Russian atomic attack, half-paralyzed by their sense of weakness and wholly alienated from this country, will violently protest against any "war-like" measures. Disunion will beget inaction, even in Washington.

And so the crucial frontier post will go—first Berlin; then Vienna (just to drive the point home); and then Yugoslavia (which the Kremlin can overrun without fear of general war, when the West is both feeble and disunited). These mounting demonstrations of Soviet strength and Western weakness will in turn beget new waves of defeatism and despair in the West. Somewhere, then, the front will break.

One cannot now foresee which of the Western Allies will be the first to sign a nonaggression pact" with Moscow; to introduce "democratic" elements into its government, and to adopt a policy of "neutrality," which will mean total disarmament. One can be certain, however, that this will happen. One can be certain also that if the front breaks anywhere, it will break almost everywhere. Eventually, then, while the voices of the appeasers sound louder and louder in Britain and the United States, western Europe will be gobbled up.

This is not nightmare. This is what can happen, and what will happen if this country does not quickly take the lead in a great effort to rebuild the defenses of the West. No one will be to blame but ourselves, for no one else is capable of thus taking the lead. And when we have let all this happen, we shall have to pay the price for it.

Every strategic and political and economic advantage we now have will be lost with the loss of western Europe. A Soviet empire, infinitely richer in resources, infinitely greater in industrial potential, will tower over us. We shall only be able to preserve our independence by transforming our society into a permanent armed camp. Or, if we do not like this unpleasant choice, perhaps some of the American leaders who are sabotaging the Western defense effort may be induced to come forward as the Pierre Lavals of this future they are so actively preparing.

U. S. Hospitals To Get Cortisone In Larger Amounts

Rahway, N. J., June 18 (AP).—Cortisone—the new wonder drug used in the control of rheumatic diseases—was made available today for its first widespread distribution to hospitals.

Merck & Co. said it had obtained approval from the Food and Drug Administration to allot its increased supplies now to some 6500 hospitals registered by the American Medical Association.

The firm, first to produce the drug by chemical synthesis, said its production had reached the point where three vials, each containing 300 milligrams of cortisone, would be allotted to each of the institutions.

The company said the drug, being manufactured under the trade name of Cortone, had been found to be "profoundly beneficial" in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatic fever, and a group of related chronic diseases for which there has been no known effective treatment.

Sex Offense Law Drawbacks Cited

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Washington's program to treat its public sex offenders as mental instead of penal cases isn't paying off as a salvage operation, its operators agreed yesterday.

At the same time, the same psychiatrists of St. Elizabeths Hospital praised the program as a pioneering, progressive step which is attracting national interest.

They listed its chief drawbacks as insufficient funds for the intensive psychiatric treatments necessary to straighten out sexual psychopaths, and present operation of the Miller Act which sends only the poor risks, the sex-twisted humans least likely to respond to treatment.

The Miller Act, designed to protect society from sex outrages by mental treatment instead of prison terms, was passed by Congress on June 8, 1948. Its first "patient" was committed to the Federal institution for the mentally ill in October of that year.

One Out of 36

Since then, St. Elizabeths officials said yesterday, 36 offenders have been similarly committed and only one returned to the courts. Seventeen of the legally designated "sexual psychopaths" have progressed to the relative freedom of "general confinement," but 19 are still in the hospital's maximum security wards.

Just who are these sex offenders, and how are they responding to treatment? Representative cases, cited in a preliminary report by three St. Elizabeth doctors, give some of the answers. They include:

"Case A. A 25-year-old, married colored musician with numerous arrests since adolescence for larceny and 18 for exhibitionism and peeping. He has used alcohol, cocaine and marijuana since age 12. He came from a broken home and was institutionalized many times before the age of 12. . . .

"He is immature and egocentric but has made good hospital adjustment.

"Over-Attached to Mother"

"Case B. A 70-year-old white widower who performed immoral acts while he was drunk . . . His father died when he was four and he was over-attached to his mother.

"Until his wife died three years ago he made a good social and sexual adjustment except for one arrest in 1933. He began to drink heavily and be despairing (after his wife's death).

"He shows minimal organic signs (of mental deterioration) with transient sensorial clouding (apathy). His ward adjustment is exemplary and he makes some requests for discharge, stating he will never misbehave again.

"Case C. A 29-year-old, single, white truck driver with five sentences for indecent exposure since 1942. Each offense occurred while he was drunk. . .

"Heavily Alcoholic"

"He has been heavily alcoholic since the death of his father 11 years ago and has been arrested for carrying concealed weapons and three other minor charges since then along with the indecent exposures.

"He has made a quiet hospital adjustment, but it has not been possible to arouse him to treatment.

"Case D. A. 34-year-old, white, three-times divorced accountant. He was orphaned at 1 year, had poor foster home placements until 12 and then made a model adjustment in an orphanage until age 18.

". . . At times his preoccupation with his unworthiness has resulted in compulsive, seemingly nonlustful touching of young girls in situations where he would be apprehended.

"Since hospitalization he has been a superficially 'good' patient, but his self-punishing operations have been very conspicuous. His jobs, therapy and friendships have all evolved into failures."

The cases are reported by Drs. Bernard A. Cruvant, Milton Meltzer and Francis J. Tartaglino, all of the hospital staff, for publication in a coming edition of the American Journal of Psychiatry. It deals with the first 24 persons committed to St. Elizabeths under the Miller Act.

The "sexual psychopaths," defined as persons seemingly unable to control sex impulses, are unpopular patients, both with attendants and with other inmates of a mental hospital, the doctors said.

Admitting that the group under care isn't statistically representative of sex offenders in the community, the psychiatrists concluded that at least those under treatment are not likely to be cured by present techniques.

Most Are Exhibitionists

"Under the present law," they stated in their report, "the majority of cases received have been exhibitionists. It is questionable whether the exhibitionist is a sexual criminal of sufficient menace to justify indefinite commitment and whether the incidence of heinous sexual crimes will be reduced by his confinement."

Much more research is still needed, they said, particularly on how to predict behavior in the individuals both before and after treatment.

Praising the program, despite its financial limitations and other shortcomings, Dr. Samuel A. Silk, assistant superintendent at St. Elizabeths Hospital, said the Miller Act is striking at problems long neglected by society.

Though the sex offender problems are general throughout United States, he said, St. Elizabeths Hospital is the only public institution in the country to tackle them on a mental treatment basis.

From such a program, he said, may someday come the answers as to what society should do for its sexual misfits.

Churchill to Get Chesney Medal For Writings

London, June 18 (AP).—Winston Churchill is to receive a gold medal July 4 for his writings about wars and world affairs.

The award was announced today by the Royal United Service Institution. The medal is the Chesney gold medal, given as a memorial to Gen. Sir George Chesney, a distinguished 19th century officer of the British army engineers.

It has been given 19 times since it was established in 1899. First winner was Capt. A. T. Mahan, of the United States Navy, who got it for his classic book, "The Influence of Sea Power upon History."

As Churchill's "outstanding contributions to military history," the institution cited nine of his books, ranging from the Sudanese and South African wars, where Churchill was a newspaper correspondent, to the several volumes of "The Second World War," which he saw as Britain's Prime Minister.

Meningitis Takes Heavy Toll in West Africa

London, June 18 (U.P.).—Cerebrospinal meningitis has swept across Africa this year, killing more than 5000 persons in Nigeria alone and crippling many others, published reports said today.

British Colonial Office figures listed 33,121 persons stricken by the disease and 4104 dead in British West Africa alone between Jan. 1 and May 20.

Nuclear Punch Hits Skeeters In Solar Plexus

Public Health Service scientists have discovered an atom age way to stop the development of malaria parasites right in their nests—inside mosquitoes.

It's a long way to a pratical method, however, since it requires feeding the infected mosquitoes on a radioactive diet.

Comparison tests of mosquitoes, it is reported in the current edition of Science, showed that the insects fed sugar-water containing radioactive phosphate did not develop the parasites to the stage where they are infectious to man.

Both experimental and control mosquitoes were first allowed to dine on malaria-infected chicks. Then they were separated, one batch for normal laboratory diet, the other for a diet with a nuclear punch. Both developed parasites in the stomachs but the disease parasites in the radioactive insects did not continue the growth cycle to the next stage, in the insects' salivary glands.

The scientists are Drs. P. F. Hahn, Victor H. Haas and Aimee Wilcox, of the Department of Biochemistry, Vanderbilt Medical School, Nashville, Tenn., and the section of epidemiology, Memphis Laboratory of Tropical Diseases, National Institutes of Health.

Rocking Bed Aids Polio Victims

Los Angeles, June 18 (U.P.).—A man whose daughter nearly died of infantile paralysis has invented a rocking bed that makes it possible to treat and cure some patients without using iron lungs.

The bed rolls the victims back and forth as if they were on a rocking horse. General Hospital doctors explained that when their feet are up, the stomach and intestines push against the diaphragm and the breath goes out. When the feet go down, the stomach goes back, the diaphragm expands, and the breath comes in.

The treatment helps some iron lung patients eventually to breathe on their own, the doctors said.

The inventor, Jack Painter, says his bed also improves the circulation, appearance and outlook on life of iron lung patients who use it.

Maryland Bankers Have Farm Seminar

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

It is going to be difficult from now on for a Maryland farmer to borrow money from a Maryland bank if he isn't using the most advanced methods on his farm.

Maryland bankers have just finished a short course of instruction in the complexities of modern agriculture and how to tell if a farmer is doing the right things in the correct ways. The instructors were agriculture experts from the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond and specialists from the Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Maryland.

An outstanding farmer in each of six State areas was selected for a class for the bankers of that area. Not only were the bankers shown just what the chosen farmer had accomplished on his farm, and how he did it; they also were given a full report on his finances, showing his profits from his various crops.

The bankers themselves didn't come through the course without having some of their failings pointed out to them.

One of the farms selected for the bankers' visit was that of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Huntt, who, in 12 years, have made a spectacular success out of what had been considered a run-down, overcropped and wornout farm near White Plains in Charles County.

Huntt was a sharecropper 12 years ago. He was determined not to spend his life working for someone else. He discovered the farm he wanted to buy, was sure it was a bargain at $5000 but couldn't get anyone to finance him. Finally, he turned to the Farm Security Administration, now known as the Farmers Home Administration.

In the 12 years he has paid for his farm, raised seven children and has a farm plant estimated as worth from $20,000 to $25,000 and an annual income in five figures. His farm is a model of diversification, with crops ranging from tobacco to dairy cattle. He is known far and wide as one of Charles County's most prosperous farmers. He has practiced soil conservation—was one of the earliest members of the Conservation district. He has rotation of corn, wheat and hay, and another of tobacco and a cover crop. He operates a sawmill and each year harvests a crop of firewood, fenceposts, lumber and pulp. He was pointed out to the bankers as an example of a good farm loan risk, although 12 years ago none of them would lend him a dime.

Visiting at the Huntt farm were bankers from Anne Arundel, Calvert, Prince Georges and St. Mary's Counties. Last Wednesday bankers from Carroll, Frederick, Howard, Montgomery and Washington County, visited the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Kline near Mt. Airy, and saw a model dairy operation.

Bridges Calls Peurifoy Able

clear "of McCarthy's technique of making charges," but he feels the department has a number of questions to answer regarding its security setup.

Bridges called McCarthy "A very sincere man" with a "very wonderful war record," and said he should be commended for trying to get rid of any Communists in the Government. Bridges added that if he were in McCarthy's shoes, "I think I would have adopted different methods."

Bridges had warn praise, too, for Dr. Conrad E. Snow, head of the State Department's loyalty board, who also has drawn McCarthy's fire. Snow, said Bridges, is "doing a very fine job."

Bridges said, however, that both Snow and Peurifoy have sometimes been overruled by their superiors in the department.

Asked why there has not been more open Republican support of McCarthy in the Senate, Bridges said there is a general feeling that McCarthy is "on the right track" but that some Republicans "definitely question his methods."

In calling on Senate investigators to hear Service at a public session, McCarthy said:

"The time for secrecy and cover-up in the Amerasia case ended a long time ago. There is absolutely no excuse for trying to bottle up Service's testimony on this important matter."

Service, veteran Foreign Service officer, was arrested along with five others in 1945 after Federal agents turned up hundreds of secret Government documents in the New York headquarters of Amerasia magazine, and elsewhere. Two were fined for conspiracy to obtain illegal possession of Federal papers. The others went clear.

Service was cleared and returned to duty in the State Department. Amerasia Editor Philip Jaffe pleaded guilty and was fined $2500. Former State Department employe Emmanuel S. Larsen pleaded no defense and paid a $500 fine.

Four Die in Highway Accidents in which a woman and her 3-year-old daughter were killed.

Dead are Mrs. Edith Jenkins Updike, 38, of Washington, Va., and Joyce May Updike.

Arrested on the fatal hit-run charge was Raymond Wesley Dearing, 42, of 2105 15th st. nw. He was held under $5000 bond for a hearing at 2 p. m. today before Trial Justice B. M. Miller of Rappahannock County.

Walking Home

Police said the Updike family was walking home from town about 11:15 p. m. Saturday when a car struck Mrs. Updike as she carried the child. The car, according to investigators, was going about 50 miles an hour when it struck a shoulder in the road.

After knocking down Mrs. Updike, the driver stopped, walked to where the woman was lying, then ran back to the auto and drove off, police said.

The other members of the family—Mrs. Updike's husband, James E., and three other youngsters—gave police a description of the car.

Sheriff J. W. Cripzer, of Rappahannock County, and Washington, Va., Town Sergt. Clyde Jenkins arrested Dearing, they said, when they saw a car that answered the description of the hit-run vehicle parked outside the home of Dearing's mother in the Virginia town.

Car Turns Over

Two Washington men were injured seriously when their car struck a bridge abutment and turned over several times near Dunkirk, Md., yesterday.

They are D. A. Young, of 2003 Fairlawn ave. se., and William Eugene Thomas, 24, of 2329 Park pl. se. Young received head injuries and a broken arm. Thomas suffered a leg wound. Both were in Calvert County Hospital at Prince Frederick.

According to the Associated Press, Maryland State Police identified the driver of the car as Christian C. Lotz, jr., of 2244 Nicholson st. se. The three men were enroute to Washington from North Beach, Md.

Charged with reckless driving, Lutz was held under $1000 bond.

Tax Boost on Big Firms Eyed

from the present 38 percent to perhaps 41 percent with other changes all adding up to higher taxes for the top 10 percent of such companies.

4. However, various members conceded the plan might bog down in an argument over cigarettes.

Over the vigorous objection of Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.), the committee has voted to cut from 7 cents a pack to 4 9/10 cents the Federal levy on so-called "economy brand" cigarettes. It was intended to put smokes on the market at 12 cents a pack, exclusive of non-Federal taxes. This action would leave the 7-cent tax on the big brands.

Representative Boggs (D., La.) rammed the economy brand tax cut through on a 13 to 12 vote.

Doughton is determined to reverse this and leave the taxes like they are now. The 87-year-old chairman, from the Southern tobacco country, contends the low-priced cigarettes would mean lower prices for tobacco farmers. Others advocated the tax cut as a boost to competition in the cigarette industry an aid to small manufacturers.

The committee will reconsider its cigarette action today. There were reports that one or two votes might shift and Doughton have his way.

There was some speculation, however, that tempers might flash in the cigarette battle and endanger efforts to "veto proof" the excise cut.

While the tax maneuvers went on Senator Tydings (D., Md.) proposed yesterday that President Truman be given broad authority to save up to 3 billion dollars of the 40 billion dollars or so Congress is expected to appropriate before it quits.

As a stop-gap remedy, Tydings said he was "thinking very seriously" of an amendment that would authorize the President "to reduce every appropriation by uniform percentages."

MORE Natural Rubber MEANS....

Better WORLD TRADE

NATURAL RUBBER is a vital import for America.

More natural rubber means better cushioning, better roads, and better products in hundreds of other uses.

In fact, more natural rubber means better living — for all.

But that's only HALF the story.

More use of natural rubber in the United States means a more stable, prosperous world economy. It means less need for direct aid and more dollars with which sterling countries can buy U.S. goods. So it means lower taxes and more jobs in the U.S.

Natural rubber is the key to the economy of strategic Southeast Asia. It is the cash crop for hundreds of thousands of independent rubber farms — large and small. It is sold on a free market — unsubsidized, unrestricted and uncontrolled.

Yes — the more natural rubber America uses — the better off you and millions of other people will be — here and abroad.

Over 90% of all the rubber grown in the world comes from this area—Southeast Asia.

The Natural Rubber Bureau has been established by rubber growers in Malaya and other rubber-growing countries to promote new uses for natural rubber in its principal market — the United States. Two of these new uses are described in recent booklets on rubber roads — "Stretching Highway Dollars with RUBBER ROADS" and latex foam cushioning — "Convert to Comfort with LATEX FOAM". Also available is a pictorial fact-booklet — "Natural Rubber — And YOU" — describing how rubber is grown in Southeast Asia and giving world statistics on production and consumption. Free copies will be sent on request to anyone interested.

Tigers Trounce Bosox Again, 10 to 2, Sweep Series; Indians Score Record 14 Runs in 1st Inning Against A's

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, June 18.—The pity is that Chicago Police Sergt. Kazimir Wistert was killed in line of duty 25 years ago, when he walked into a hold-up man's bullet, else on the night of August 11, he would have qualified as the father of the year.

That's the night when two of the sergeant's boys, Albert and Alvin will be facing off against each other in the annual pro-league champions-college all-stars football game at Soldiers' Field.

POVICH

The late sergeant will have one of his boys on each team, playing tackle. Albert, the all-pro league star of the Eagles, will be looking across the scrimmage line at Alvin, the latest of Michigan's All-American tackles and captain of last year's varsity.

There was another Wistert boy, too. His name was Francis, the oldest, and he also did very well. Like Albert and Alvin he was an All-American tackle at Michigan, the first of the three brothers to wear No. 11. He made the big leagues, too, for a spell, pitching for the Reds, and is remembered mostly for losing a 1-0 game to the Cubs.

ALBERT WAS a tow-headed lad of four, Alvin was a big boy of nine in that sad year when their daddy got it. The paradox is, though that kid brother Albert went through Michigan and was already an established star with the Eagles before Alvin, 5 years older, made his first letter at Michigan.

It's Alvin who has the more romantic story. He didn't get to college until he was nearly 30. He was in the Marines for five years, helping to finance Albert's way through school. With the end of the war, he went to college at the age of 29, put in one year at Boston University before transferring to Michigan under the G.I. Bill.

Alvin's 34 now, certainly the oldest college football player in the Nation last year. When he went out for the team at Michigan, he had been out of high school for 13 years, hadn't played football in that span. But he had going for him all the zeal of a college freshman and that rugged, 6-3, 225-pound frame of all the Wisterts.

AT HIS AGE, Alvin isn't going into pro football, so his last fling at the game will be on the night of August 11, when he'll be looking his kid brother in the eye—the one he helped through school, and who now is in his eighth season with the Eagles. Albert's captain of the pros, too. He was one of the Eagles who beat the Collegians, 35-0, last year.

The coach of that College All-Star team in 1949 was Bud Wilkinson, famed as the head coach of Oklahoma U, to draw the picture of Alvin's age a bit finer, he was one-year-older than Head Coach Wilkinson and still playing college football. Brother Albert played for the College All-Stars eight years before Alvin could make it.

With Michigan last season, Alvin played almost every minute on defense. The fact that he didn't play offense, was no concession to his 34 years. Michigan was dedicated to the platoon system of offensive and defensive units which has doomed the 6-minute player. Otherwise Alvin would have been a 60-minute man, his coach says.

THE COLLEGIANS have been taking some complete beatings in the All-Star games in recent years. Their youth is supposed to be in their favor, but it doesn't offset the greater efficiency of the pros who have long been operating as units. It's additional proof that no assemblage of All-Stars can be whipped into shape and beat a good, solid championship team.

For the pro league, the annual Soldiers Field game is a bonanza. The Eagles' share of the gate will be around $85,000, more than they draw from their own league title playoffs. In fact, it is what the pro league owners are really shooting for during their league season. The players get game-and-a-half wages, and the rest is velvet for the clubs.

Eddie Anderson, former Iowa coach, is bossing the All-Stars this year. Even as bright a coaching genius as Frank Leahy couldn't assemble an All-Star team capable of beating the pros a couple years back. Anderson will have many a player who will move immediately into pro ranks and make good, but his club on August 11 will be playing the post-grads who know and play a lot more football than collegians.

Kell, Evers, Robinson Bat In 8 Runs With Homers

Detroit, June 18 (AP).—The American League leading Detroit Tigers blasted three homers, good for eight runs, as they whipped the Boston Red Sox 10-2 today to sweep a three-game series.

The Tigers pounded out a dozen hits off a trio of Red Sox pitchers while Young Art Houtteman spaced seven Boston hits for his eighth win as against five losses.

The losers' two runs came on homers, Ted Williams hitting No. 20 in the fourth inning and Vern Stephens adding No. 15 in the eighth.

But the Tigers, who grabbed an 8-0 lead in the first three innings, more than outdid the hard-hitting Bostonians in the home run department.

Red Sox starting pitcher Chuck Stobbs found himself trailing 3-0 before he was able to get a man out in the first inning as George Kell hit his third home run with two mates aboard.

Aaron Robinson hit another three-run homer in the third inning and Hoot Evers added a two-run four-bagger in the sixth, the latter coming off relief pitcher Al Papai. It was Evers' tenth and Robinson's seventh of the year.

The game, the start of which was delayed 30 minutes because of rain, was the Tigers' ninth win in their last 10 starts, and their sixth successive triumph over the Red Sox.

Tribe Romps, 21-2, After Feller Wins 2-Hitter, 7-0

Cleveland, June 18 (AP).—Bob Feller's brilliant two-hitter in the opener and a record-breaking 14-run attack in the first inning of the second game sparked the Cleveland Indians to a double victory over the Philadelphia Athletics today, 7-0 and 21-2.

The 14 markers set a modern major league record for first inning runs by one team and tied the record for runs scored in any inning.

Every man on the Cleveland team batted twice in the frame except Pitcher Mike Garcia. The tallies came off Pitchers Lou Brissie and Carl Scheib on a double, four singles, seven walks, an error and a three-run homer by Ray Boone.

By taking the double header and sweeping the four-game series, the Tribesmen boosted their winning streak to six, their longest of the year.

Feller looked like his old self in checking off his sixth victory against five defeats and his first shutout of the year.

Wally Moses, who singled in the first, and Mike Guerra, who got a one-bagger in the eighth, were the only men to get hits and only five players reached first.

How the Indians Scored the 14

Cleveland, Ohio, June 18 (AP). Here is how the Cleveland Indians scored their 14 runs in the first inning of today's second game with the Philadelphia Athletics which the Indians won, 21-2:

Dale Mitchell doubled along the left field line. Bob Kennedy lined out to Pete Suder. Luke Easter walked. Larry Doby walked, filling the bases. Al Rosen walked, Mitchell scoring and the bases remained filled. Joe Gordon walked, Easter scoring. Ike Boone walked, Doby scoring. Jim Hegan popped a single to right scoring Rosen and Gordon, Boone stopping at third. Mike Garcia singled to right, Boone scoring, Hegan taking third. Mitchell walked.

Carl Scheib replaced Lou Brissie in the box for the Athletics. Kennedy walked, Hegan scoring. Easter singled to right, scoring Mitchell and Garcia, Kennedy going to third. Doby singled to center, scoring Kennedy, Easter stopping at second.

Rosen was safe when his grounder bounded off Eddie Joost's glove for an error, Easter scoring, Doby reaching second. Gordon flied deep to Sam Chapman. Doby going to third on the catch and Rosen holding first. Boone hit his second home run of the season into the left field stands, Doby and Rosen scoring ahead of him. Hegan popped to Ferris Fain.

Fourteen runs, six hits, one error, none left.

Bobby Ruselyn pitched a seven-hitter, struck out 14 men and tripled with the bases loaded to lead St. Teresa's to a 10-5 victory over Holy Comforter in a Junior Boys CYO League semifinal game yesterday at Taft Playground.

In another semifinal game, Joe Marion's eighth inning single brought in the winning run as Sacred Heart nosed nout St. Ann's 9-8.

Henrich, Mize To Be Treated By Phog Allen

St. Louis, June 18 (AP).—Tommy Henrich, New York Yankee first baseman, has decided to try osteopathic treatment for the chronic lameness in his left knee.

He and Johnny Mize, also a first baseman, left here tonight for Lawrence, Kan., where they will be treated by Forrest C. (Phog) Allen, famed Kansas University basketball coach and osteopath.

Harris Says He's Happy With Trades

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, June 18.—Bucky Harris was given additional time for reflection over his recent player deals when the Nats' doubleheader with the White Sox was rained out today. The Nats' presence is desired here for a hastily-scheduled night game tomorrow, so Harris had lisure in Chicago.

He also had a high conviction that he made the right moves when he traded off Ray Scarborough and Eddie Robinson to Chicago, and then gave up Dick Weik to Cleveland for Mickey Vernon.

"I'd make those deals all over again," said Harris, confidently. "If they don't make us an improved ball team, I'll always think they should have."

"But We're Improved"

He wasn't concerned by the fact that Scarborough has won three out of four starts for the White Sox, beating the Nats twice; or that Robinson was on a hitting rampage for the same club, or that Weik won for Cleveland in a relief role yesterday.

"I hope they all do well, except when we're against 'em," said Harris. "What cuts the most ice with me is how our own club stacks up."

"We needed a second baseman so badly we were hungering, and Cass Michaels fills that bill. He isn't squared away yet, but we know he's a good ball player. Mickey Vernon gives us good protection at first base and lets me put Noren back in the outfield where we needed him.

"With the Cleveland deal, we strengthened two positions — the infield and outfield. We picked up a pretty good pitcher in Kuzava, too. Even if we haven't been winning, we're a better ball team than we were while we were in fourth place. If that sounds screwy, it is nevertheless a fact."

The club is thin on pitching, Harris admits. "We knew we were sacrificing pitching when we gave up on Scarborough. His kind is hard to come by. But we couldn't stay static with what we had. I thought it was our best gamble."

One of the steps Harris has taken to bolster his staff is a cable to Havana asking that Rogelio Martinez, touted as the best in the Florida International League, be sent to the Nats immediately. Martinez may join the team in Cleveland, and will see action as a starter almost right away.

Haviland Beats Wilson for Amateur Title

Baltimore, June 18 (AP).—Paul Haviland, 20-year-old maintenance employe on the Five Farms Golf Course, won the 1950 Maryland Amateur Championship over that same layout today with a 2-and-1 upset defeat of Col. James W. Wilson, of Washington's Army-Navy Club, formerly medalist.

Victory in the finals came on top of a semifinal upset in which young Haviland yesterday eliminated defending Champion Ralph Bogart of Chevy Chase, 1 up in 21 holes.

Young Haviland had this advantage over his older opponents: He knew every nook and cranny of the 6630-yard layout intimately.

The match ended today on the thirty-fifth, when the youngster, 2 up at the time, sank a 2½-foot putt to halve the hole with a par 3.

Haviland pulled up from a two-hole deficit in the early play and was never behind from the twelfth on. In the morning round, the youngster won the first and lost three straight, rallying to draw even on the turn. He went ahead on the tenth, dropped back even on No. 11, and then won 12, finishing the morning round 1 up.

Three down after 31 holes, Wilson got one back on No. 32 when he sang a 35-foot putt.

That left Haviland two up with four holes to play, and they halved the next three to give the young Baltimorean the match.

Haviland was four over par with a 74 in the morning round, and was two over for the 17 holes this afternoon.

9-0 Victory Gives Bums Series Sweep

Brooklyn, June 18 (AP).—The Broklyn Dodgers trounced St. Louis, 9-0, today to sweep the three game series and cut the Cardinals National League lead to a half game.

Dan Bankhead blanked the Red Birds on six hits. The runner-up Dodgers sewed up the game in the second inning with a four run rally that included a triple by Gene Hermanski and a double by Duke Snider.

Bankhead posted his first major league shutout while his mates piled up their highest hit total of the year, 18. The league leaders were hopelessly beaten in the second inning when Gerry Staley was belted out under a four-run attack.

Yanks, Hitting Like Sluggers Of Old, Sock Browns, 15-5, 9-0

St. Louis, June 18 (AP).—Back in slugging form, the New York Yankees swept a double-header from the St. Louis Browns, 15-5 and 9-0, here today. Joe DiMaggio hit a homer in each game. Allie Reynolds got the shutout with an eight-hit performance.

Yogi Berra led the Yankee hitting attack in the second game with four hits, including two doubles, in four times at bat. DiMaggio, who drove in three runs in the second contest, left the game in the fifth inning with a leg cramp—just two hits short of the 2,000-hit mark.

Joe Collins slammed out his eighth home in the seventh with a man on base.

For the Browns, Dick Kokos got 2 hits in three times at the plate in the nightcap.

In the first game, the Yanks got three home runs and the Browns two. Winning Pitcher Tommy Byrne hit one of New York's four-baggers with two men on. Woodling and DiMaggio also slammed for the circuit.

Yanks' Statement Says

Stengel Agreed Fully On Deal With Browns

New York, June 18 (AP).—The New York Yankees said today Manager Casey Stengel was in "full agreement" with General Manager George Weiss in last Friday's eight-player deal with the St. Louis Browns.

The club issued a two-page mimeographed statement denying the deal had been made without Stengel's knowledge, as reported by New York newspaper writers covering the team.

"The last-minute deal made between the two cl

100,000 Seat Stadium Could Land Olympics

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Washington could have the 1960 Olympics simply for the asking if it only had a 100,000-seat stadium. And getting Congress to authorize such a stadium isn't as tough as it sounds.

That's the opinion of Bill Henry, who was instrumental in getting the war memorial stadium for Los Angeles in the 1920s, and directed the Olympic Games there in '32.

BILL HENRY

He got on the subject the other day in his National Press Building Office while talking about the upcoming National A.A.U. track championships Friday and Saturday at Byrd Stadium. He terms them the "American Olympics."

Henry, Washington correspondent for the Los Angeles Times now, is convinced it would not be so hard to get a stadium here if the project were handled properly.

"By properly," he explained, "I mean get an influential group of businessmen to sell the President the idea that Washington is just crying for a place to hold outdoor conventions, parades and festivals. Sports are the last thing to sell.

"Congress would fall in line quickly if the President hopped on the stadium bandwagon.

"If Washington had a stadium or had a chance of getting one by 1960, the International Olympic Committee would leap at the chance of holding the games here.

"Practically everybody in the world wants to come to Washington. It's the Nation's Capital and, you might say, the capital of the world.

"I know that the stadium obstacle looks overwhelming, but in Los Angeles, we had the same problem with red tape and politics back in the '20s.

"But we got an influential group to convince the city council that a 100,000-seat stadium would be a great boom to Los Angeles.

"The council floated some bonds, the citizens gobbled them up, and within a very few years, the stadium paid for itself.

Nicholson Pinch-Hits 1st Victory

Philadelphia, June 18 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies came from behind in both games to defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 4-3 and 4-2, in a double-header today.

They won the first game in the ninth and took the second with a two-run rally in the eighth.

Nicholson, pinch-hitting for Pitcher Curt Simmons, scored Ralph Caballero from third in the ninth to give the Phillies the victory in the first game.

Curt Simmons racked up his eighth victory against three losses in the first game. Bob Miller continued the season unbeaten, with his fifth win in the second game.

Lions Hold Big Fight Show Tonight

Amateur ring competition between some of the best boxers of Washington, Norfolk and Baltimore will be presented at Griffith Stadium tonight in a charity boxing show sponsored by the Georgetown Lions Club. The 12-bout program opens at 8:30 p. m.

Two District Golden Gloves-AAU champions, Paul Nicol and Maurice Rackey, appear on the show.

Nicol, winner of his International Golden Gloves fight in April, will fight Ed Haslip, a tough youngster from Baltimore, while Rackey, novice titlist, takes on Tommy (The Kid) Soboleski, Virginia State AAU champion.

Soboleski, one of the brightest stars of the Tidewater section, has won 44 of 50 amateur battles.

Another titlist from Norfolk, Va., AAU featherweight king, Walter Rawls, will go against Billy Maxfield, former local AAU champion. Rawls has held his title three consecutive years, and is winner of 66 of his 70 fights.

Tickets, tax included, are on sale today at Griffith Stadium.

LaMotta Date Changed

New York, June 18 (AP).—The International Boxing Club announced today that Jake LaMotta will defend his world middleweight championship against Italy's undefeated Tiberio Mitri at Madison Square Garden July 12.

Mitri substitutes for ocky Graziano, who was scheduled to challenge for LaMotta's crown at the Polo Grounds June 28. Graziano

Claude Owen's Sky's Shadow Wins Show at Hyattsville

By Harry de Mawby, Jr.

Sky's Shadow, owned by Claude Owen and handled by Gardner Hallman, won his seventh championship tri-color in the hunter division of the Hyattsville Lions Club show yesterday.

Sky's Shadow earned a blue in the hunter hack, placed in the best hunting performance class and $100 hunter stake event under Hallman's guiding hand and also scored a brilliant victory in the lady hunter class with Mrs. Hallman riding.

Hugh Wiley, recently riding over the Northern circuit steeplechase courses, took time out to show his smooth gray hunter Blue Ridge to reserve honors in the hunter division, annexing three blue ribbons and topping all hunter entries for the greatest accumulation of winning efforts.

Chicagoan 16 Under Par For 90 Holes

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 18 (U.P.).—Lloyd Mangrum won the $15,000 Palm Beach round robin golf tournament today with a sizzling, 16-under par 344 over 90 holes that gave him a substantial plus 37 total.

The somber-looking 35-year-old Chicagoan, who said he "built up enough of a cushion yesterday to coast in," carded a one-under par 71 in today's fifth round to pick up two points and give him a comfortable 17-point margin over veteran Lawson Little, the tourney runner-up with a plus 20 total.

The $3,000 first prize boosted Mangrum's winnings within a three-week period to $8,100, probably the most money ever won by a golfer in a similar space. He won $2,600 in the Fort Wayne open two weeks ago and $2,500 for placing second to Ben Hogan in the open championship last week at Ardmore, Pa.

He shot five truly fine rounds in the past four days—70-70-65-68-71—344. Par for Wykagyl is 72, or 360 for 90 holes.

Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, oft in contention but never in the lead, fired a one-over par 73, lost six points but captured the $1500 third prize with an overall plus 15.

Little Ben Hogan, the National Open champion and pretourney favorite, shot the best round of the day—a fine 69—that gained him 10 points, but still left him eleventh in the select field of 16.

The money winners:

Lloyd Mangrum	71—344	+37	$3000
Lawson Little	70—355	+20	2000

Bill Benning Says:

AT DELAWARE

Dear Folks:

Maryland racing isn't what it used to be, it's true. Inadvertently, it is kicked around. For instance, a doping case in Maryland always seems to get more nationwide publicity than one elsewhere. Seems to work that way, too, on any other adverse-to-racing angle.

Granted there wasn't any intent meant, but it is true that the current issue of Life magazine, featuring an expose of gambling, carries many interesting pictures, including a layout of various gambling gimmicks. Right in with the photographs of lottery tickets, numbers sheets, tout cards, etc., are two racetrack tickets—one a tote ticket and the other a daily double ticket.

Now these bits of pasteboard are available in over half of the Nation's 48 States. However, two of the three shown in Life are definitely stamped "Pimlico." See what I mean?—BILL.

1—Rank, Uranium II, Snow King II. 2—Bright Bones, Linda's Lady, Step's Girl. 3—Useless, Ballinakill, Perceivale. 4—TOWNHOUSE, Daralet, Count Off. 5—Algasir, Ennobled, Alabine. 6—Eternal Son, Miss President, Koritza. 7—Jess Supply, Penny Hill, Pigwigi. 8—Master Showman, Village Boy, Littlewhitelie.

Laurel Lists $5000 Purse

The $5000 purse in tonight's seventh race at Laurel Raceway will be the first offered in Maryland trotting history.

Thirteen top 2-year-olds, including the favored W. N. Reynolds' entry of Watcha and Volora, will trot in the mile-long event—the Washington—for the record purse. Three more $5000 and six $10,000 stakes are on tap during the meet's remaining 18 days.

Grays Trounce House of David

The Washington Homestead Grays won both games of a doubleheader, 9-3 and 9-0, from the bearded House of David of New York before 3,000 yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

VA Medical Is Filling Few Vacancies Among Its 120,000 Employes

One of the hardest freezes in Government is on the 120,000 employes in VA's Department of Medicine & Surgery.

VA officials are gambling that normal turnover will prevent a major layoff of its hospital employes. Very few hospital vacancies are being filled. The staff, in fact, is being stretched to service beds in new hospitals being opened.

Several months ago VA gave layoff notices to 4800 of its hospital people. The notices were postponed a few days before they were to become effective after the agency was deluged with protests.

The President recommended and the House approved funds to keep the 4800 on the job through the end of this month. A VA request for funds to continue the 4800 for the 1951 fiscal year that begins on July 1 has been ignored. Hence, the deep freeze on hospital employes to prevent a big layoff during the next couple of weeks.

HAT'S OFF: To the Navy and General Services for making the Government more efficient and economical.

About two years ago the Navy decided to set up a program to control the hundreds of different reports it is required to make annually. The new office was given this assignment: to eliminate nonessential and obsolete reports; to prevent duplicate reporting; to simplify reporting, and to set up a central reference point for reports information.

The office has been in full operation for about a year. During that short period it has saved about a million man-hours, and savings are now running 100,000 man-hours a month, or the full-time work of about 60 employes.

GSI recently negotiated a single contract with Consolidated Edison of N. Y., and Westchester Lighting Co. to service all Federal agencies in the New York area. That one contract will save Uncle Sam an estimated $253,000 annually.

STORY: This is a repercussion of all the disloyalty and sex-pervert charges aimed at State Department employes.

A former State employe filed an application for a job with a private firm. In answer to the question: "Why did you leave your last place of employment?" he wrote: "I was fired." And then he added this clarifying sentence: "I want it clearly understood that I was fired for disloyalty reasons only."

INQUIRY: Nelson & Warren, a St. Louis actuarial firm, has been awarded a contract to make a fact-finding study of the Government's 18 different retirement systems. The costs, benefits, and other factors of each system will be given a going-over. Eventually, the study may be used as a basis for both merging and changing the systems.

TRAVEL: Another project underway is a revision of the Government's many travel regulations. Administrative officers will be given additional authority and employes who travel won't be compelled to produce so many vouchers under the new regulation. The travel handbook hasn't been revised since early 1942.

EFFICIENCY RATINGS: The Murray bill to overhaul the efficiency rating system will be called up today in the House. Chances for its approval are excellent.

INQUIRY: Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), has asked the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee to investigate the firing of 800 disabled veterans of World War II from the Boston Post Office.

REVENUE: The firing of Internal Revenue employes under the Taber-Thomas and Jensen riders could cost the Government an estimated 360 millions annually in revenue.

The estimate was made to the Senate Appropriations Committee by Aubrey H. Childress and Hugh W. Cardon of the National Association of Employes of Collectors of Internal Revenue. Each member of the enforcement staff, they explained, brings in an average of $71,980 annually to the Treasury. Any layoff would hit this staff hard as it has been expanded recently.

Neely Asks Justice Dept. For Wire-Tap Information

Copy of Shimon Report on Hughes Case Sought; Fay, McInerney Confer

Chairman Matthew Neely of the Senate District Committee will press the Justice Department this week for a copy of the super-secret Shimon "wire-tapping report."

The report involves the investigation into charges that Police Lieut. Joseph Shimon, now of the Fourteenth Precinct, engaged in wire-tapping activities during Senate investigation in 1947 of air and movie magnate Howard Hughes. The Justice Department now has the report.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay disclosed last night he discussed the Shimon report last week with James M. McInerney, chief of the Criminal Division of the Justice Department.

No Decision Planned

No decision was reached, Fay said, and the consultation between the two men was not held for the purpose of reaching a decision.

Senator Neeely (D., W. Va.) has not asked him for the report, and Fay said he does not have a copy.

Senator Neely has asked Major Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, for Barrett's copy. Barrett is reported willing to release it to the Senator providing the Justice Department gives its consent.

McInerney, confirming the "brief meeting" with Fay, said last night that Peyton Ford, the assistant to Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, would have to give consent.

The Senator made his request to Barrett last week. Now in West Virginia, Neely is expected back in Washington Tuesday.

Reached in West Virginia yesterday, he said he had "no comment".

But according to highly authoritative sources, Neely already has received some information concerning the contents of the report.

Three Witnesses Involved

Part of this information concerns three witnesses who are believed to have said that Shimon set up wire-tapping equipment in the Carlton and Mayflower hotels during the 1947 investigation of Hughes.

Multimillionaire Hughes was investigated by the Senate War Investigating Committee. The investigation led to charges and countercharges between Hughes and Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.).

Neely's position in the Shimon report is that there may be some material in it that concerns the Senate District Committee if police were engaged in wiretapping activities.

Lieutenant Shimon, from 1941 until the middle of last year, was assigned as chief investigator in the United States Attorney's office.

In September, 1949, Shimon was transferred to the 14th precinct. According to Major Barrett, at the time, the transfer came after narcotics were found in Shimon's desk.

Fast Approval Seen for D. C. Rent Measure

Faced by a June 30 deadline, the Senate District Committee is expected to give speedy approval Tuesday, to a measure extending District rent control to January 31, 1951.

Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) is expected to seek Senate floor action on the rent measure this week since the House probably will not vote on an identical bill until Monday, June 26.

Also on the agenda of the 2:30 p. m. Tuesday meeting of Neely's committee are District bills to:

1. Increase unemployment compensation benefits.
2. Apply the District minimum wage law to men.
3. Set definite standards for payment of wages in private industry.
4. Put Metropolitan, White House and Park Police on a five-day week.
5. Liberalize teacher leave legislation.
6. Regulate the optometry practice including new restrictions on price advertising.
7. Give District firemen liability protection in case of injuries suffered while fighting fire outside the District.

Boy, 14, Tumbles 50 Ft. Into River, Only Scratched

An accidental 50-foot tumble into the Potomac River yesterday resulted only in a few scratches for 14-year-old Fred Dougherty, police reported.

They said the boy, who lives at 2222 I st. nw., was climbing a 60-foot embankment near Key Bridge and slipped on the gravel near the top. He fell 30 feet before hitting a slight knoll which broke the last 20 feet of his fall.

He was fished out of the water by James W. Crampton, of 4818 Canal st. nw., who saw the fall, police said.

Police Shoot Man Sought in Investigation

A 28-year-old man, shot by police investigating an attempted assault, was in critical condition at Gallinger Hospital this morning. Police charged him last night with assault to commit rape.

Police Lieutenant John B. Monroe, whose bullet dropped the man, said the suspect is Samuel Crawford, jr., of 4251 Dix st. ne.

Investigating the complaint of a woman identified as Mrs. Mary Freeling, 30, of 5149 Lee st. ne., Monroe said he fired once at Crawford after ordering him three times to halt in the 4200 block of Washington pl. ne.

Crawford was taken to Gallinger with a bullet wound in the right hip. Doctors said he suffered a serious loss of blood.

Hearing Set On Recreation Board Budget

District Recreation Board will hold a public meeting at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the board room of the District Building to gather ideas for its 1952 budget.

Representatives of all citizens' and civic associations, parent-teacher associations and other community groups have been invited to participate in the session. Later in the year, another meeting will be held to discuss the board's recommended budget request.

The budget session will be preceded Tuesday by the ninth annual meeting of the board starting at 6:30 p. m. in the District Building. The election of officers is on the agenda.

The annual meeting will be the first since three board members were renamed. They are James E. Schwab, Walter L. Fowler and Albert E. Steinem.

Butler Proposal Seen Eliminating New Building Need

Senator High Butler (R., Nebr.) suggested yesterday that approval of his subsitute social security bill would eliminate need for the proposed 11 million dollar Old Age Survivors' Insurance building in the Washington area.

The House may act this week on the measure authorizing the new building.

Butler explained his bill, which may be considered in the Senate Tuesday, would grant pensions to all citizens, with age and income the only eligibility tests.

Arlington Wife's Death in Bathtub Ruled Accidental

An Arlington woman, whose body was found in the bathtub of her home Saturday, died accidentally, County Coroner W. C. Welburn ruled yesterday.

Mrs. Josephine Miller Pettersen was found, with face submerged, by her husband, Army Maj. Herbert E. Pettersen, who said he became alarmed when he heard the shower running for a long time after he returned home Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Pettersen, who was 34, worked for the Air Force Association in Washington. Major Pettersen is attached to headquarters of the Military District of Washington.

Experimental Military Police in District Ride Herd on Personnel of All Services

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Cruising slowly, the jet-black patrol wagon with an odd insigne on the door turned off H st. and rolled slowly south on 9th. At the corner of F st. it grazed the curb.

Two downy-lipped sailors stood on the corner, swaying gently as if in a high wind. From the front seat of the black paddy wagon, a husky Air Force sergeant leaned out the window.

"Where you men from?" he asked.

"Patuxent River Naval Station," one of the youngsters told him. "We just got back from Newfoundland and we're having a —— —— good time." They had two girls with them, and the girls giggled.

A Marine sergeant at the wheel of the black wagon leaned across his Army partner and told one of the sailors: "You better button up one of those cuffs, sailor."

"But it's hot," the gob protested.

"You're in the Nation's Capital, buddy. Button 'em!"

The Navy man, taking an order from an Air Force sergeant and a Marine, buttoned his cuffs. He didn't argue.

He seemed to take the new, still-experimental Armed Services Police Detachment pretty much for granted.

In a way, the ASPD is proving the blessings of armed service unification at the cradle stage.

The two men in the black patrol wagon—S/Sergt. Clarence Swartz, 24, of the Air Force, and Sergt. Ed Gryszkiewicz, a Marine—are part of a unified body of 105 officers and men from all service branches. Their jobs: to police all off-post servicemen in Washington.

"There used to be MP's and SP's and Air Police," Navy Lieut. Commdr. Ralph N. Pickles (the ASPD executive officer) explained. "They'd cover the same block, look after their own men, and ignore each other."

And then, last January 3, the unified force was activated with the blessings of the highest brass, including Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.

Initially commanded by a Navy man, the outfit went under Army Major Samuel R. Turner this month.

For the record, at least. Politeness, is the keynote. Says Turner: "The standard operating procedure is to handle all cases with tact and courtesy."

No longer do the military cops invade taverns to pinch woozy servicemen. Now they enter only on request of the proprietor. When they want to question a man, "they call him aside out of the public eye."

As PD's six vehicle patrols and three foot patrols always work in "opposite service" pairs, Swartz pointed out. When a tipsy Gyrene has to be pinched, the Navy or Marine cop in the pair puts the arm on him. If the offender is the Army, the Air Force or Army handles him.

Patrols keep officers as well as enlisted men in line, only, as Swartz wistfully observed: "You have to approach them with quite a bit of caution." The pair get few kicks from servicemen: "They know we're unified," Gryszkiewicz said.

Children Entering Schools To Get Treatment for Teeth

Free sodium fluoride treatments to cut down tooth decay will be made available again this summer to children entering District schools for the first time in September.

Dr. A. Harry Ostrow, director of the District Health's Department's bureau of dental services, announced yesterday, the program will start Tuesday at two clinics and continue until September 8.

One clinic for white children will be set up at Bancroft School, 18th and Newton sts. nw. (NA. 6000, extension 2557), he announced. Another for Negroes will operate at Grimke School, Vermont ave. and T st. nw. (NA. 6000, extension 2476). He said appointments should be made in advance, either through the local P-TA or by calling the clinic.

Preference will be given children entering school this fall, but younger children may be treated later in the summer if time permits, Ostrow said. Dabbed on the tooth surface in four separate applications, the solution is reportedly 40 percent effective in preventing new decay for a three or four-year period.

Hadassah and Zionist Installation Planned

Mrs. Edith Segal, reelected president of the Arlington-Fairfax District of Hadassah, and Sidney Edelman, newly elected president of the Arlington-Fairfax Zionist Organization of America, will be installed at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Ceremonies will be held in the Arlington Jewish Center, Lee blvd. at Fenwick st., with Benyamin Hagai, former lieutenant commander in the Israeli navy, presiding.

200 at Rites Here

Balts Mark 10th Year of Red Invasion

By Martha Hall
Post Reporter

Ten years ago, in June, 1940, the armies of Russia swarmed over the tiny Baltic countries of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, and annexed them to the Soviet Union.

Yesterday about 200 Latvians and Lithuanians, resettled in Greater Washington after the horror of years under invaders and the chaos of displaced persons camps, marked the anniversary of that event at two religious services here.

They commemorated also the mass deportations of thousands of their countrymen from their native lands to the slave camps of Siberia. And, above all, they offered fervent prayers that one day their home countries would again resume their places in the family of nations.

Latvians recalled the events at a service at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol st., sponsored by the Lutheran Inner Mission Society.

Lithuanian Service

For Lithuanians, the service was at Immaculate Conception Church, 8th and N sts. nw.

Except for the reading of the Gospel, the entire service at the Lutheran church was in Latvian. It was conducted by the Rev. Alexander Veinbergs, himself a former displaced person.

He recalled that on June 14, 1941, 35,000 Latvians were arrested by Russian police and deported to slave camps. Since then, he said, he understood that deportations have continued, though there is no way of communicating with Latvia today.

He expressed gratitude for the Latvians who have found a haven and new home in the United States and said he hoped that they could help to teach Americans from their experience what Communist occupation and dictatorship mean.

Climax of the service was the singing of the Latvian national anthem, "Dievs, Sveti Latviju." As its first chords rang out the congregation, aged men and women, youths, and little children who never had seen their homeland, stood with shoulders back and sang proudly.

Strong Emotions

But for many the music brought back too many memories. As they stood with their eyes riveted on the blood-red and white Latvian flag, tears rolled down their cheeks and their shoulders shook with sobs.

The Rev. Joseph Venckus, Lithuanian-born priest who now teaches at Georgetown University, was celebrant of the Mass at Immaculate Conception, and the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra, pastor, preached.

The Russians, with their "devilish plans of exterminating and enslaving the helpless people of Lithuania," began systematic deportations on June 13, 1941, Father Gedra said. Between that day and June 1949, more than 700,000 persons, one-third of the entire population of the nationa, were deported, he said.

"We can understand to some extent, but not condone, the Russians' attitude toward human beings, because they have rejected almighty God and God's rules. In God's place they have substituted themselves and their whims as laws," the priest said.

The "apparent indifference" of world leaders to the Russian crimes in the Baltic countries, he said, is "incomprehensible."

Sleeping Man Badly Burned

William Stewart, 57, of 1508 Webster st. nw., was burned critically early yesterday at his home when he apparently fell asleep on a sofa while smoking a cigarette, police said.

Stewart was taken to Emergency Hospital with third-degree burns from the waist up. The fire was confined to the room.

Police forced open the front door of the house and found Stewart, his clothes in flames, on the sofa in a second-floor room.

Penned Taunt Burns Firemen On False Alarm

Traces of a joker of truly distinguished talents were discovered last night by firemen who responded to an alarm from a box at 44th and Hawthorne sts nw.

Tucked inside the tripped box was this penciled gem:

"To the firemen, hah, hah, hah. So you think there is a fire. But there isn't any. You will hear from me again.—Lucky."

And on the back, this friendly explanation: "I hate you and the cops so go to hell." The paper had "Ogontz School, Pa.," printed on it. Seventh Precinct police went immediately to work.

Ill Child, 3, Dies On Way to Hospital

A 3-year-old boy became suddenly ill last night and died of undetermined causes while being rushed to Gallinger Hospital with a police escort.

Mr. and Mrs. William Salterwhite, of 1305 Stevens rd. se., told police their boy, Milton, developed a fever and became unconscious at about 9 p. m. He was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital, where doctors were unable to say immediately what killed him. An autopsy is scheduled for today.

Chain Store Safe Cracked By Pair In Alexandria

Neighbors Watch Men Escape In D. C. Car; Loot May Be $1000

Two safecrackers emptied the cash from a safe in the Safeway Store on Mount Vernon ave. near Glebe rd. in Alexandria yesterday and made their getaway while nearby residents looked on.

The onlookers, who reported "cracking" noises in the store a few minutes earlier, told police they saw two Negroes leave the store and drive off in a blue sedan with District tags.

In the front office, police found an empty 3-foot safe with the door chiseled open. Store authorities were not immediately available to check the amount stolen, but police estimated it would come to at least $1000. Entry was gained by forcing a rear door.

A lookout for the two men and the getaway car was broadcast to the District, and later in the day the blue sedan was found abandoned on Westminster st. nw.

D. C. Man Dies Of Gunshot In Virginia

Stanley, Va., June 18 (AP).—Olen Dinger, Washington carpenter and stone-mason, died tonight in University Hospital at Charlottesville after being shot in the neck with a .22 caliber bullet last night at a carnival.

Dinger

Charles Sandross, Stanley chief of police, arrested Merle Rothgeb and charged him with felonious shooting after the incident. Commonwealth's Attorney I. R. Dovel, of Duray, said tonight that Rothgeb would be charged with murder.

Dinger was taken to the hospital in Charlottesville shortly after the shooting, which occurred just before midnight.

He worked periodically on Washington area building projects and resided there while at work.

The shooting occurred while Dinger was standing with Mrs. Beulah Dinger, whom he divorced three years ago; their daughter, and 4-year-old granddaughter. They were watching a high diver at the carnival about 11 p. m.

According to Mrs. Dinger, Rothgeb, with whom she "has been keeping company" strolled up and Dinger demanded, "What are you doing here?" This led to an argument which wound up when Rothgeb drew a revolver and shot Dinger, Mrs. Dinger said.

Rothgeb served in World War II and was in a German prison camp for a year.

Prince Georges Soroptimists To Seat Officers

Mrs. Roberta Laughton of Ritchie, Md., chief deputy clerk of the Prince Georges County Circuit Court, will be installed as president of the Soroptimist Club at the annual banquet tonight at Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.

Speakers will be Miss Vivian V. Simpson, Maryland Secretary of State, and Chief Judge John B. Gray, jr., of the Seventh Maryland Judicial Circuit.

Other officers to be seated are Christine Hensley, vice president; Lois Havens, treasurer; Dorothy Zundel, corresponding secretary; Helen Morrison, recording secretary; Alice Moore, Naomi Cohee and Gertrude Poe, board members. Installations will be made by Miss Ella Werner, a director for the Soroptimist South Atlantic Region.

Dr. H. A. Notter Dies; State Dept. Aide

Funeral Tuesday

W. R. Harr, Retired, Dies In 77th Year

William Richard Harr, 76, 38 Primrose st., Chevy Chase, Md., former Commissioner of Veterans Affairs at District Court, died Saturday in Emergency Hospital after a heart attack at the Cosmos Club.

Mr. Harr, who retired in 1948, was appointed to the court post in 1931 to assist in handling claims filed by veterans of World War I.

He was appointed assistant to the Attorney General in 1909 and served in that post until 1913. At that time he was the youngest man to receive such an appointment.

Mr. Harr was secretary of the Washington National Monument Society from 1921 until his resignation in 1949 due to ill health. He was a graduate of Columbian Law School.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Hamilton Breeze of New York and San Francisco, and a sister, Miss Addie M. Harr, 36 Primrose st., Chevy Chase, Md.

Funeral services will be at S. H. Hines Funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., Tuesday at 4:30 p. m. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Man Dies In Hospital After Fall Down Stairs

Injuries suffered in a fall down stairs earlier in the evening proved fatal for James E. Bland of 1219 17th st. nw. last night, police reported.

Bland, a carpenter, apparently tripped down the cellar stairs of his home, and fell, striking his head, police said. Casualty Hospital reported death was due to a fractured skull.

Dr. Harley A. Notter, of the State Department's Bureau of United Nations, died yesterday afternoon following a heart attack.

The 47-year-old U. N. Affairs adviser was pronounced dead shortly after 6 p. m. by a family physician at his home, 6650 Barnaby st. nw.

A native of Sebewaing, Mich., Dr. Notter came to Washington 13 years ago to join the State Department. Prior to that he taught history at Stanford University.

He was the recent author of a 725-page book entitled "Postwar Foreign Policy Preparation", an elaborate record of what the State Department did in the war years to plan peace.

A graduate of the College of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wash., Dr. Notter receive dhis M. A. and Ph. D. from Stanford.

Beside his wife, Margaret Taylor Notter, he is survived by three children, Mary, 10, Robert, 8, and David, 6; and his father, brother and sister.

Wesley E. Carter Dies; Linotype Firm Official

Manhasset, N. Y., June 18 (AP).—Wesley E. Carter, 41, editor of "Linotype News" and director of public relations for the Mergenthaler Linotype Co., died Saturday.

A native of Greene County, Ky., Carter graduated in 1934 from the University of Kentucky School of Journalism.

Following a period as reporter for the Louisville Courier Journal, Carter was owner of the Hardin County Enterprise at Elizabeth, Ky.

During World War II he served with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Lucille Carter; a son, Wesley E. Carter, jr., and a daughter, Miss Anne Marie Carter.

Ground Broken for Synagogue Uniting Three Congregations

Ground for the new million-dollar Tifereth Agudath Ohavay Sholom (TAOS) Congregation synagogue center was broken yesterday at Tuckerman st. between 13th st. and Piney Branch rd. nw.

The new synagogue, slated to be completed in about a year, will serve the united congregations of three Orthodox groups. They are Tifereth Israel, 14th and Euclid sts. nw.; Ohev Sholom, 5th and I sts. nw., and Agudath Achim, 909 Quackenbos st. nw.

Until the building is completed the three groups will continue to meet separately. The united congregation is believed to be the largest Orthodox synagogue in the country.

Participants in the ceremony yesterday included Representative Brooks Hays (D., Ark.), Arthur Liverhant, first secretary of the Israeli Embassy, and the Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Rabbi Hyman Ezra Cohen, who represented the Washington Board of Rabbis, urged the united synagogue to serve the entire Jewish community in the northwest section, Conservative and Reformed as well as Orthodox, through the new center.

W. E. Colburn Dies; Corcoran Cadet Member

A charter member of Washington's famous Corcoran Cadets, William E. Colburn, 81, died Saturday at his home, 2701 14th st. nw., after an illness of several months.

Mr. Colburn was one of 100 surviving members of the drill corps, organized 67 years ago. A life-long resident of Washington, Mr. Colburn was the son of the late Laura and William Colburn.

He was graduated from Spencerian Business College in 1895 and for about 25 years was in the cement contracting business with a brother, the late Joseph Colburn. Later he became a building superintendent.

Last February he was retired from the Washington Loan and Trust Co. where he worked for about five years.

A Shriner for 51 years, Mr. Colburn held the fidelity medal from the Masons as the oldest man in years of membership in Pentalpha Lodge No. 23. He was a member of Mt. Vernon chapter No. 3, Royal Arch Masons and Columbia Commandery No. 2, Knights Templar.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Frances V. Colburn; three daughters, Mrs. Edna Walton, Mrs. Dorothy Olds and Mrs. Ruth McAleer, all of Washington; two sons, W. E. Colburn, jr., of Los Angeles and Joseph B. Colburn, Douglaston, L. I., and a brother, Albert E. Colburn of Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw.

John R. Saunders Dies; Richmond City Sergeant

Richmond, Va., June 17 (AP).—John Goodrich Saunders, 82, Richmond city sergeant for 24 years, died at his home here tonight. A native of Buckingham, Saunders was city sergeant here until his retirement in 1945.

Brother Paul Dies; Helped Ruth's Career

Fort Monroe, Va., June 18 (AP).—The Rev. Brother Paul, C. F. X., an educator who influenced the development of Babe Ruth, died today at the Sacred Heart novitiate here. He was 85.

Brother Paul was superintendent of St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore for 18 years, and during a part of that period young George Herman Ruth was a student there.

He was present when Ruth signed his first baseball contract with the Baltimore Orioles, and there is a story about a hurried trip he made to New York to bring inspiration to the Babe during a batting slump. Ruth broke out of that slump to set a new home run record.

A Xaverian brother for 65 years, Brother Paul was the oldest member of the order in point of service. He served for nine years as Superior General, being the first American to gain that honor. The post required his residence in Bruges, Belgium.

Born Peter E. Scanlan in Lawrence, Mass., Brother Paul entered the brothers' novitiate in Baltimore in 1885. He directed Xaverian Brothers' schools at Old Point Comfort, Va., and Rutherford, Calif., in addition to his term at St. Mary's.

He left St. Mary's in 1925 to become Provincial of the American Province, and was elected Superior General three years later. At the end of his term in 1937, he stayed on as assistant to the Superior General until 1947, when ill health forced him to retire from active duty.

The body will be taken to Baltimore for a requiem mass on Wednesday. A sister, Mrs. A. D. Morgan of New Rochelle, N. Y., is the only close surviving relative.

Young Democrats Back Farley for Governor

New York, June 18 (NYHT).—James A. Farley, former Postmaster General and Democratic National Chairman, was indorsed as Democratic candidate for Governor today by the Affiliated Young Democrats of New York State, which concluded a three-day biennial convention here.

"Piles were daily torture until I found Pazo gives amazing relief!" says Mrs. F. M. H., San Gabriel, Cal.

Amazing Pazo* relieves torture of simple piles fast. Acts to relieve itching, pain instantly. Soothes raw, inflamed tissues. Lubricates and softens dry, hardened parts. Helps reduce swelling, heal cracking. So don't suffer needless misery of simple piles. Get Pazo, get real comfort right away. Ask your doctor about it. Suppository form or tube with perforated pipe.

Nothing Under Sun But Fun These Days

By Marie McNair

WHAT TO DO on a day like yesterday? Well, Mr. and Mrs. George Vournas, Bishop and Mrs. Angus Dun, Dore Martin and Clara Mills, all had the answer. Give parties under the blue skies and the green trees touched gently by the sun!

Speaker Sam Rayburn is the annual guest of honor at the Vournas' mastiha (Greek for an informal out-of-doors fete) held at Callithea, their Maryland farm. One hundred or more guests motored out around 2 o'clock to "pitch horseshoes, milk the goat or the cows, gather the eggs, feed the pigs, play bridge or, if endowed with defective talent at card playing, play canasta" just as the invitations read. Some just sat in the sun, others wandered along the greensward for a view of the Potomac until the lamb on the barbecue spit was done to a turn. Which meant it was time for supper.

Cathedral Group Honor Guests

BISHOP AND MRS. DUN entertained at the second in a series of garden parties at the Bishop's House, for members of the National Cathedral Association and others who have taken an important part in helping to maintain the services and educational activities of the Washington Cathedral.

The United States Air Force string ensemble played during the afternoon, and the tea table was set out against the Dolly Madison boxwood and the golden rain tree. Mrs. G. Howland Chase, president of All Hallows Guild, was among those asked to pour. Others included Miss Anne Carter Greene, Miss Elisabeth Houghton, Mrs. Luther D. Miller, Mrs. James Lemon, Mrs. William J. Flather, jr., Mrs. McCook Knox, Mrs. Earle F. Hiscock, Mrs. Ernest W. Greene, Mrs. Elizabeth Glascock Taylor, Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall, Mrs. James Speer Taylor and Mrs. Charles C. Glover.

Mrs. John Clifford Folger, new chairman of the Washington committee of the National Cathedral Associatioin, received with the hosts.

Picnic Given For Engaged Pair

BETSY BEACH and David Sterling, whose every minute before their wedding on June 26 is taken up with parties, were picnic honor guests yesterday of Dore Martin and Clara Mills. Among members of the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. Willmott Lewis, jr.; Frederica Sterling, Grayson Beach, who'll be her sister's maid of honor; Barbara Barry, Anne Mackall, George Hamilton, 3d, and John Sterling, who will guard the wedding ring for his brother.

Another popular bride-to-be, Nancy Misson, and her fiance, George Randolph Cooper, jr., were entertained at a luncheon yesterday given by Jane Lingo, a bridesmaid at their wedding to take place Wednesday in St. Alban's Church. The six bride's attendants and the five ushers and best man all lunched at the Army-Navy Country Club, then came back to town for the supper party which Miss Misson's parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Clinton A. Misson, gave at their home on Fulton st. Mrs. Cooper, mother of the prospective bridegroom, arrived yesterday from Paris in time to join the guests. The company, numbering 60, included the parents of the wedding attendants.

Add to the party calendar yesterday Mrs. Fred Britten's luncheon at the Mayflower, where she makes her home, for her old friends Senator and Mrs. Owen Brewster, and Mr. and Mrs. George Wasserman's open house and garden party at their home on Ellicott st.

Admiral Guest At Farewell Fete

ADMIRAL and Mrs. E. A. Solomons are the guests in whose honor Admiral and Mrs. H. B. Jarrett entertained at dinner at Normandy Farm yesterday. Admiral Solomons will soon leave his Washington assignment for a tour of sea duty.

Mrs. Parker Dove, chairman of the patrons' committee of the Watergate Grand Opera Festival, will be a television guest tonight from 9 to 9:30 on the "Meet Mrs. Markel" program over WTTG.

Major Gen. and Mrs. H. W. Blakeley have with them for a visit Mrs. Blakeley's brother-in-law and sister, Rear Adm. and Mrs. Powell M. Rhea of Fayetteville, Ark. Admiral Rhea, who retired from active duty in 1946, is now the Mayor of Fayetteville.

Following their wedding rehearsal, Miss Patricia Lou Head and Glenn Walker Ferguson will be honored at a dinner party to be given on Wednesday at Normandy Farm by the prospective bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Erwin Ferguson. About 23 guests will be present including the parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Savely Head, and the wedding party. Miss Head and Mr. Ferguson will be married at the old Falls Church in Falls Church, Va., on Thursday.

The Ambassador of Thailand and Princess Wan Waithayakon have issued invitations for a reception on June 24 from 6 to 8 p.m. in celebration of the Thai National Day.

Tobé Says...

Thinnest Black Nylon For Black Silk Crepe

Every so often a new fashion suddenly springs up that is directly counter to the current fashion. Everyone is wearing much lighter stocking colors than in years, yet suddenly it's smart again to wear the thinnest possible black nylons with the new black silk dresses.

Actually these are so thin that they look almost frosty on the leg. In fact one new black stocking is called "Black ice" and it looks just like that.

Filmy black nylons are smart with black transparent dresses too—look like an integral part of the dress itself.

Are You a Baby? Enter This Contest

Are you a baby under five years of age or do you know one? Babies of all kinds—under five—are eligible to compete in a Baby Show to be held during the next six weeks in the Washington area. The show, conducted by the Disabled American Veterans, is open to one baby per family except in the case of twins where "duplicate entries" will be permitted.

There is no registration fee and all babies will be given free health exams. Healthy babies will get certificates, blue ribbons diplomas or gold seal awards depending on just how high they score on the health card.

The prettiest girl and best looking boy in each age class will receive beauty ribbons and from this group "Miss Washington" and "Master Washington" in the diddie set will be chosen. These winners get loving cups.

Babies should be registered by their parents on Thursday, Friday or Saturday, (June 22-24) at any of the following stores: Goldenberg's in Washington, Lane's in Bethesda and Dietz' in Hyattsville. The first fifty babies registered at each store Thursday will receive free gifts. Babies need not be present at time of registration but no entrants will be accepted by telephone.

Economic Aid Will Be League Theme

Economic aid to underdeveloped areas as a positive alternative to war will be the thema of the International Institute of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom to be held at Cazenovia, N. Y., June 18-24.

Dr. Ernest B. Kalibala of Uganda, East Africa, area specialist with the United Nations Department of Trusteeship, will discuss the relationship of Africa to economic development.

When Wedding Bells Peal, Invitations Hand-Written by the Bride Help Her Guests Share in Her Excitement

The most flattering wedding invitation of all is one written in the bride's own hand—one indicating that though the wedding will be small, she particularly wants you to be there. L. K. M. writes:

DEAR ANNE:
I am planning a very simple, informal wedding to which I would like to send handwritten invitations on note paper to my friends. Would you tell me the correct style or give me an example of wording of such.
L. K. M., Shadesville, Va.

The wording of your notes should be suited to the individual, but in general you'd say something like this:
Dear Sally:
Dick and I are to be married at Christ Church at noon on Thursday, June 28. Of course, we want you to be there, and hope you can come over to Aunt Mary's immediately after for a bite to eat and to wish us luck.
Affectionately,
Linda.

DEAR ANNE:
Can you advise me how to remove milk stains, which have been "set" by cleaning, from a tootal linen dress. The stains are now hard and brown.
Mrs. C. C., Arlington, Va.

Powdered pepsin, which is an enzyme, will soften stains containing albumen (found in milk, eggs, blood, gelatin and certain medicines). This works even after the stains have been set by heat or alcohol. Once softened, they can be easily sponged out.

Dampen stains with water and sprinkle with pepsin powder. Let stand for half an hour, keeping spot damp. Then sponge or wash out.

DEAR ANNE:
In answer to Mrs. H. E. M.'s question about keeping pieces of onion once cut. I have found it very helpful to wrap the cut piece in aluminum foil and put it in the crisper. It keeps indefinitely this way. When I want to use it, I cut a very thin slice off the cut edge, which has dehydrated a little, and find the rest of the onion as good as it was when it was first peeled. This method also keeps the onion from producing contaminating odors in the rest of the refrigerator.
M. F. M., Riverdale, Md.

Many thanks to M. F. M., as well as to E. T. G. of Washington, who sent in the same suggestion.

DEAR ANNE:
In a few days, I leave for a summer music camp in Harrisonburg. I am taking a pair of sandals and don't want to ruin them inside with dust and dirt. Is there anything I can do or use to prevent this? They are just a few straps.
E. G., Culpeper.

If you walk in the dust, E. G., you're bound to get dusty and the same goes for the inside of the currently popular shoes of many straps. About all I can suggest is to make a practice of dusting them off. Use a lightly dampened rag if necessary, and follow by drying with another cloth. In this way, the dirt will not accumulate. It's possible you might give them further protection by using a clear plastic spray on the inside but this may be uncomfortable for your feet in hot weather.

DEAR ANNE:
Do you know of any place I can buy a pagoda-shaped lamp shade for covering by myself? As I have taken a course in lamp-shade making and have the material I desire to use, I am not interested in having a shade made, especially as the only estimate I have received so far is for $20.
H. D. S., Washington.

I've just called a shop on G street that carries lamp shade frames and they tell me they have them in pagoda shape. I can't guarantee you'll find them in the size you want, but you can check further by telephoning National 0140.

DEAR ANNE:
What is the general pay for a pianist for dancing school classes in the District area? Is such pay by the hour, month or session? ABC, Washington.

Rates for musicians belonging to the union are fixed by their organization, an affiliate of the AFL. For non-union pianists, there is no prevailing rate, fees varying in accordance with the experience of the musician and the budget of the organization which hires them. If you want to hire a musician, it would be best to consult the union. If you want to get a job as accompanist, you would have to decide what your services are worth to a potential employer.

One on the Aisle—

Ayot St. Lawrence Vs. Avon Bardolotry

By Richard L. Coe

FIRST OF ALL, it would be punk reporting not to comment on the Olney Theater itself. First nighters for Shaws "Caesar and Cleopatra" found the country theater looking lovelier than ever.

A deep flagstone terrace has been added to the front of the white building, tying down, so to speak, the tree-shrouded playhouse, which has grown a bit each of the past four summers. The terrace, shortly to be edged with flowers and topped by an awning, makes an ideal intermission spot and gives an air of elegance to the simple pleasure of country playgoing.

Indeed, the luxuriant roominess that makes possible so spacious a lobby and wings that accommodate rolling stages for scene changes, could happen only in country acres. Halfway between Baltimore and Washington to attract audiences from both cities (though the patrons have always been dominantly Washingtonians), Olney gives an idea of the relaxed ease our expensive city theaters cannot even dream of.

And there is certainly distinction in a summer theater which can lead off with the numerous costumes and settings required by Shaw's spectacular whimsey about Caius Julius Caesar and the Serpent of the Nile. Summer package shows enjoy but two weeks rehearsing and it comes under the heading of daring to mount a play of such scope in so brief a time.

With those factors in mind, we may now consider the performances.

The trouble with the production opening night was that both the director and the company had confused Shaw with Shakespeare. Awed, perhaps, by antique Egypt and the celebrity of the title figures, they attempted to make an historical chronicle out of a comedy. Largely, they spoke as if in blank verse and there was less of the antic spirit in them than the dogged determination of the St. Magnus Repertory Company to whack over a classic on history.

Inevitable, perhaps, for in the 52 years since Shaw wrote his comedy, both it and he have become classics. But, as usual, Shaw foreshadowed this in his "C & C" notes. He wrote: "The only way to write a play which shall convey to the general public an impression of antiquity is to make the characters speak blank verse and abstain from reference to steam, telegraphy or any of the material conditions of their existence." Into this pit, the company has dived.

Paulette Goddard Scores

This gave a singularly unfortunate tone to the whole performance. Lines that should sparkle drooped along in the mere mass of words. Only the very obvious humor of Britannus (not, please, you actors, "Britannicus") touched the audience.

Inevitable as this may be for a summer theater performance, there is a deeper reason. The prime prerequisite for Shaw is the physical equipment to get out his words intelligibly and this, by and large, our players do not have. Whether from inactivity or too much microphoning or whatever the purely physical capability does not exist to be coupled with whatever intelligence actors may possess or be led to suggest.

Responsibility for a virtually sold-out run ending next Saturday night rests with Paulette Goddard, the movie glamour girl now trying her dramatic wings for the first time in this country. Miss Goddard, improving as the comedy goes on, is surprisingly good.

Capricious Cleopatra

And while it would be ridiculous to say that the oft-dunked DeMille heroine lacks the physical requirements for Cleopatra, Miss Goddard certainly lacks the vocal and physical command of ease. Still, it was a promising performance and she clearly understands the capering avariciousness of Cleopatra.

The civilized complexity of Shaw's Caesar eludes Francis Compton, who is too busy with his words to crystallize their import. He reaches for the selfish, commonsense genius of Caesar without consistently grasping it.

The Apollonorus of Hurd Hatfield is more a fault of direction than acting. Why must this well-born, virile if handsome Sicilian always be pushed into the supercilious? Yes, Rufio describes him as a flop, but Rufio, by Caesar's description, is "a comrade in arms," rough, outspoken and inimicable to so civilized a man. He is also a fighter. Yet, John Buckmaster in the recent New York production was similarly misled. Shaw didn't permit it himself in the film version (Steward Granger) and Caesar would be quick to distrust such posturings.

Ear vs. Eye

Norman MacKay is a good Rufio the actor has presence and a sound, well-trained voice. Grant Gordon is a forthright Septimius, another believable soldier, and Morton L. Stevens speaks well the sly dignity of Pothinus. There is a departure from custom for Ftatateeta, though it was urged 40-odd years ago by the author. Vinette Carroll, a Negro actress, plays the matriarchil slave; there is not enough of the grotesque, too much dignity, in her conniving old woman.

The settings of Syrjala and the lighting are eye-filling, with the exception of the first scene, further marred by late opening-nighters. The complications of staging this play, with its multiple dives into the sea, can tend to distract the ear from listening while the eye is watching.

Which is one more reason the company suffers from a case of confused bardolotry. The geniuses of Stratford and Ayot St. Lawrence are of different ilk. By midweek Olney's and Director Arthur Sircom's players may well be projecting that difference.

DIRECTIONS—George Cukor directs Bill Holden (light suit) and Judy Holliday (in large hat)

Capitol Sightseers See Film Stars at Work

The Capitol building was turned into a fabulous movie set yesterday when Columbia Pictures set up kleig lights and cameras under its very dome.

Sightseers got more than they had bargained for as they wandered into the huge rotunda and bumped into movie stars Broderick Crawford, Bill Holden and Judy Holliday. Crawford won an Academy Award for his performance last year in "All The King's Men."

Reason for Hollywood's invasion of the Nation's legislative center was the filming of scenes for the movie, "Born Yesterday."

All day long as Director George Cukor and camerman Joe Walker sweated under the bright lights, visitors gaped at the stars, recognized them, and dug into pockets for autograph pads.

The scene in the Capitol is part of a Washington tour in which Holden shows Miss Holliday the Watergate Amphitheater, Statler Hotel, Mellon Art Gallery, Congressional Library, and Jefferson Memorial.

Holden said: "I am not going to beat anybody on the head with the message in this picture, but it's there."

The story concerns a millionairs junk dealer (Crawford) who came to Washington with his girl friend (Miss Holliday(to wangle legislation favorable to his interests. A reporter (Holden) exposes the junk dealer's shady scheme and wins the girl with the help of Washington's inspiring scenery.

Between shots Holden discussed affairs of the Screen Actors Guild, of which he is vice president. Miss Holliday was kept busy signing autographs, but she hopefully kept a crossword puzzle ready for action.

Extras for the film were recruited locally and received $15 a day for their efforts.

Holy Year Ends Dec. 24

Vatican City, June 18 (U.P.).—The Vatican Committee for Holy Year announced today that the 1950 jubilee will end on schedule Christmas Eve, putting an end to the hopes of many Catholics that the event might be extended until next Easter.

60 Chinese Injured In Hongkong Clashes

Hongkong, June 18 (U.P.).—More than 60 Chinese were hurt today, three of them seriously, during day-long clashes between left-wingers and refugee Nationalist soldiers.

The veterans said a band of trade unionists started the trouble by reviling them. The laborers said they were on their way to a picnic when the veterans attacked them.

Contractors to Meet

The Electrical Contractors Association of Prince Georges County will meet today at 8 p. m. in the American Legion Quonset Hut, Mount Rainier, Md., to discuss county licensing.

Players Try Out for Parts in Sesqui Drama

By S. L. Fishbein
Post Reporter

Fifty yards down the green slope from his monument, George Washington, in a brown business suit declaimed sadly:

"The country is on the brink of a civil war."

The warm sunlight brightened the blond head of Martha, standing a few feet away.

It was the sixth or seventh George, and the sixth Martha, who viewed the state of the Union with alarm yesterday at the Sylvan Theater.

The Marthas and the Georges, and about 100 others were participating in the final tryout for the speaking parts in the symphonic drama, "Faith of Our Fathers," written by Paul Green for the Sesquicentennial celebration.

Part way up the slope, Director William Vorenberg listened and peered at the stage from under a fore-and-aft sun helmet improvised from an old newspaper.

As would-be forefathers read portions of the script, Vorenberg would jot down his judgments, "good voice," or "good projection," or just "cute." Cute was for some of the 16 actresses trying for the part of Lucy Bridges, the "pert and saucy" niece of George Washington.

Nearby, similar notations were made by Composer Paul Green. "There's some fine talent around here," said the Pulitzer prize-winning playwright enthusiastically.

The last George having said his piece, Green and Vorenberg, and L. Poe Leggette, executive producer, adjourned to Lisner Auditorium to compare notes.

Several professionals were down from New York to take a crack at major roles. But, said Vorenberg, a staff member of George Washington University drama department, "we're specifically interested in getting trained students around here who have no place to go with their training."

Winners of the 40 speaking roles will be announced at the end of the week. Rehearsals are due to begin July 5. The drama will open early in August.

Stunt Shows Have A Wicked Backlash

By John Crosby

RADIO and television contests generally operate with horrible efficiency. A girl is sent into the mountains by Art Linkletter to prospect for gold planted there earlier by Mr. Linkletter's henchmen. I always harbor a vague, reprehensible hope she'll be eaten by bears. She never is. She always gets back safely with the gold and is immediately showered with trailers, washing machines and Cadillacs by Mr. L.

EDWARDS

Still, these stunts do misfire from time to time, just often enough to keep my hopes alive. Not long ago, one of Mr. Linkletter's stunts landed right back in his lap. Seems he'd promised to make one of the contestants on "People Are Funny" rich on a shoestring. Then he gave the chap a shoestring and sent him on a six-week tour of the country posing as a destitute veteran.

Theoretically, he was to have traded the shoestring for something more valuable and eventually to build it into a fortune. It didn't work, though. The contestant, figuring if one thing doesn't work, try, try again, was at last word suing Linkletter for $126,000 damages.

The Febrile Springs

ANOTHER stunt that failed was perpetrated by Mr. Linkletter's fun-loving colleague, Ralph Edwards of "Truth Or Consequences." A couple of months ago, Mr. Edwards' home town, Hot Springs, N. Mex., changed its name by referendum to Truth Or Consequences, Mr. Edwards and his program reaping about a ton of publicity.

This wasn't enough. Soon the city fathers, conceivably prodded from behind, were asking the Civil Aeronautics Administration to name the radio station at its new airport "Truth Consequences," and also requested that the Morse code identifying letters be DUZ, which happens to sponsors Mr. Edwards.

The local CAA officials, apparently the only people in the world unaware that Duz is a commercial product—it's a toothpaste or a candy bar or something—complied. However, the CAA officials in Washington, who know what Duz can do and what it can't do, got wind of this stunt and vigorously dissented. The new radio station will be known as the Hot Springs station; its call letters will be HSP, which doesn't exploit anything you can buy in a drugstore.

Non-Telegenic

IN TELEVISION right now, a lot of the stunts and contests revolve around a person's looks, something that never mattered much in radio. (In radio, a Brooklyn accent was greatly preferred to a pretty smile.) This is a dangerous business, because people who are presentable enough in a living room may turn into monsters in front of a camera.

Several dozen television stations around the country have fooled around with charming child contests, a stunt that may very well turn the country against childhood entirely. You know how hard it is to get a child to behave in front of a Brownie camera. Well, it's 100 times harder in front of a television camera.

Over NBC the other night, one of these charming children, who rather resembled Rumplestiltskin in an ugly frame of mind, was hoisted on the lap of the master of ceremonies. He tried to provoke conversation. She scowled belligerently at the floor. I think she was turning over in her mind the advisability of biting him.

One device, well calculated to make you lose interest in television forever, is to flash an interminable procession of snapshots of charming children on the TV screen. Maybe you like that sort of thing. Frankly, I can get enough of it at the homes of my friends.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Life's Highway Is Full of Detours

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

When a poker player says "that's good," he means "that's bad."

MORAL: DON'T BE A LAST-MINUTE LOOIE

Several motorists have complained that they've been "shut out" at the District Safety Inspection Stations, although they've arrived before the official closing time of 4 p. m.

The explanation is very simple. Employe shifts end at 4, and the stations must be closed then. On days when there's a long line (no remarks, please) a man is stationed outside to count off the number of cars which can be handled before quitting time and to inform latecomers that they'll have to try again the next day.

True enough, many a motorist who has taken time off from work to beat the 4 o'clock deadline must be turned away under this system. But it's the best that can be done under the circumstances, and much better than letting motorists wait in line for a half-hour only to close up shop in their faces.

MILK STRIKE (CONTD.)

Mary Ellen reports that three very small boys were waiting for a traffic light to change when a woman lugging a galvanized pail walked up beside them.

As she peered anxiously up and down the street, one of the kids piped: "Looking for a cow, lady?"

PERSONAL NOTES

A. J. Barnack, 618 I st. nw.: An excellent poem, but far too long for this limited space.

HOPPY LIKES WARM CHOW

A controversy of sorts has been stirred up by Orval Hopkins, the fellow who writes a travel column in the Sunday editions of this newspaper and at other times contributes droll movie reviews to the amusement page.

Hoppy complains that during too many evening rush hours a tugboat comes chuffing up or down the Potomac. This causes the drawbridges to be raised, and makes our reporter (and 10,000 other Virginians) late for their dinners.

Hoppy wants to know why traffic authorities can't tell that tug to go toot his whistle, and come back at a time when there's not so much traffic. More to the point, he delegated me to give somebody a piece of our mind.

I do not think I am in a position to spare any pieces of my mind, however small. But I did get some facts which may be of interest to impatient motorists.

The basic law governing drawbridges is that they must be opened on signal for any craft which cannot safely pass under them. The joker is: "Except for local regulations."

All drawbridges are under the jurisdiction of the Army's Corps of Engineers. Their regulations for the Washington area provide that local bridges shall not be opened between 7:15 and 9 a. m., or between 3:45 and 6 p. m.—except for Federal and District Government vessels.

Lieut. Col. Harry R. Davis, acting engineer of the Washington District, and River and Harbor Chief Robert L. Wadsworth assured me that traffic tie-ups on local bridges were a matter of great concern to them.

"We've just had another meeting recently," they told me, "to discuss ways of minimizing openings during rush hours. The Navy, for example, is cooperating by scheduling its arrivals and departures for non-rush periods whenever possible."

Chief need for "excepted" openings, in case you're interested, is for Coast Guard vessels, the District's fireboat (which is sometimes in a mighty big hurry) and the President's yacht.

Privately owned vessels may also request openings during rush hours if a sudden freshet or other emergency makes such a request necessary. And the drawbridge tender has no choice but to stop traffic and let 'em through.

Three toots and up she goes. Somebody may get a dressing down later—but that's the law.

POSTMAN KNOCKS ONCE

Henry Petersen of 4310 Garrett Park rd., Kensington, Md., observes:

"In the old days a Post carrier boy making one delivery a day could look forward to becoming a mailman making two. Currently, chances for advancement seem to be shrinking."

Army Seen Favoring Big Firms

By Drew Pearson

It looks as if small business was getting the same old run-around from the Army-Navy, and that big business was getting the juicy plums, some of them illegally.

PEARSON

During the war, the brass hats contended that the urgency of placing orders forced them to concentrate on big companies. Result was that six corporations handled 60 percent of all war contracts.

Now, however, with plenty of time and no excuse for favoritism, the Army has recently shown completely unwarranted favoritism toward Westinghouse Electric Co. in the buying of water coolers.

When the Chicago Army quartermaster's office requested bids on $100,000 worth of water coolers, it received 16. One Westinghouse bid did not come up to specifications, which under procurement regulations should have barred Westinghouse from that part of the contract.

This was protested by the Sunroc Refrigeration Co. of Glen Riddle, Pa. However, when Sunroc protested, the Army brazenly turned round and permitted Westinghouse to change its specifications. This change was made even though the bids already had been closed.

Orville Morrison, president of Sunroc, took his case up to the office of Secretary Johnson, but got nowhere. Secretary Johnson's speeches about a fair deal to small business apparently meant nothing.

Finally, however, Congressman Manny Celler of New York, in charge of the House monopoly inquiry, got busy, placed the matter before the General Accounting Office. There, forthright Lindsay Warren, watchdog of the Treasury, promptly declared the Army's acceptance of the Westinghouse bid illegal.

Backstage Apology

Real facts seldom catch up with the headlines, especially when so much is done behind closed doors. However, a former OSS agent, Archibald Van Beuren of New York contritely apologized to the Senate committee investigating the McCarthy charges last week.

This fact was little known. Much better known were the earlier headlines, spread by Senator McCarthy when he read a sensational telegram from Van Beuren on the Senate floor.

In the telegram Van Beuren charged that Senate investigators probing Amerasia were not interested in getting the true facts, and that when they met with him, they chiefly tried to discredit McCarthy's witnesses.

Later, however, the author of this telegram came to Washington, appeared before the committee and completely revamped his story. He admitted that the telegram had been cooked up by McCarthy himself, along with Scripps-Howard newspaper reporter Frederick Woltman who is chiefly behind the Amerasia probe, and by Robert Morris, the bitterly partisan Republican counsel for the Senate committee.

Van Beuren testified that Morris and Woltman first proposed that he send McCarthy the telegram accusing Senate investigators of whitewash. Then McCarthy himself sent a telegram suggesting certain ideas, which Van Beuren then sent back as his own. Later McCarthy read to the Senate the telegram which he himself had inspired accusing the Senate committee of prejudice and whitewashing.

It was for his part in this plot to mislead the public that Van-Beuren apologized.

A somewhat similar attempt to mislead the public was made when McCarthy brought a former FBI man, John Huber, to Washington with the promise that he would give sensational evidence against Owen Lattimore. Then the FBI agent suddenly backed out, disappeared, and hasn't shown up since. The whole thing fizzled.

Real fact is that Huber had no real evidence. He knew this and presumably McCarthy knew it. Undoubtedly that was why McCarthy flew to Washington on the same plane with him, virtually held his hand to make sure he would testify. However, after McCarthy deposited Huber at the Carlton Hotel and went back to his office, the unwilling witness ducked.

Some newspapers played up the story as if mysterious forces surrounding Lattimore had spirited Huber out of town—which was not true. Actually he was and still is in contempt of the Senate for ignoring a subpoena. But for some strange reason the Senate committee continues to let its authority be flouted.

Two of women's deepest interests . . . babies and pretty clothes . . . monopolized conversation at the Columbia Hospital Women's Board meeting. The second oldest women's hospital in the United States (founded 1866 with a record of over 82,000 infants born there), enthusiasm waxed high over the Board's benefit activities. The popular Virginia Baker won her share of attention, too, in her beautiful ensembles from The Hecht Co.
